STATE FIGHTS TO BRING PONZI TO TRIAL

BUTTON CLEW IN MURDER

WANTS TO PRESS 50 CHARGES

Allen, in Federal Court, Moves to Get Ponzi Before Massachusetts Jury

The State today started a fight to bring Charles Ponzi to trial on more than fifty charges of larceny.

Ponzi is a prisoner at the Plymouth jail, where he was sentenced on Federal charges of improper use of the mails.

The State's move was fought today at a hearing before Judge Morton in the Federal court.

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, accompanied by Sheriff Blake, of the Plymouth House of Correction, and Attorney Daniel Coakley, acting for Ponzi, appeared at the hearing.

After hearing what the attorney-general had to say, Judge Morton announced that he would take no action at this time but gave Allen permission to file formal briefs for future consideration by the court.

PROTEST BY COAKLEY.

Coakley protested against the proposed move, and also objected to a request made by Allen for the decision of the judge, for a private conference with Judge Morton.

"If there is going to be any private conference over this matter I want to be present," declared Coakley. "I protest against the interjection of politics into the case."

Sheriff Blake explained that he had accompanied the Attorney-General to the court in order "to ascertain just what my duties in connection with the application of the State officials for the prisoner Ponzi may be. I want definite instructions from the court as to how I am to act in this matter. Of course, I shall follow those instructions to the letter."

"WITHOUT PRECEDENT."

After the conference was over Attorney Coakley told newspaper men that he had "never heard of such a proposal as that made by the State. This demand for a Federal prisoner serving time on one charge before his sentence has expired is without precedent."

The State indictments against Ponzi contain more than fifty counts charging him with grand larceny and with being accessory before the fact in each grand larceny count a sentence of five years might be imposed, and the minimum sentence on each of the other counts is imprisonment for one year.

PAT ROONEYS WEDDED HERE 17 YEARS AGO

New York, April 11.—The seventeenth anniversary of the wedding of Pat Rooney and Marion Rent will be celebrated on the stage of the Apollo Theatre tonight. They were married seventeen years ago in Boston and they have practically travelled the world over as a team in vaudeville. Now they are holding forth as the bright shining stars of the musical comedy hit, "Love Birds," at the Apollo Theatre.

Admits She and "Charlie" Have Tastes in Common

Los Angeles, Cal., April 11.—Although admitting that she and Charlie Chaplin have many tastes in common, and that they have read much together, Miss May Collins refused to confirm the report that they were engaged.

The young woman, who is said to be only seventeen years old, was born in New York and educated at Sea Pines, Cape Cod, Mass., and at Miss Somerville's School for Girls, New York. She played her first part in Masterlinck's "The Betrothal" when she was fifteen.

"Mr. Chaplin is absolutely the most wonderful person I have ever met," said Miss Collins. "He is an artist in everything he does. Some day he is going to create a new character as unique in its way as the one for which he is already famous.

"We have many tastes in common. We have read almost everything from Shelley to Schopenhauer together."

ROBBER GETS $60 AND GIVES BACK $15

New York, April 11.—"Gimme dis mon or I shoots da gun," sang a modern Robin Hood to M. Steinberger, clerk of a cigar store at Eighth avenue and Forty-eighth street. Steinberger complied, handing over $60 from the cash register. Robin Hood counted it, tossed three $5 bills back to the clerk and departed singing "For I'm a Jolly Good Fellow."

DAVIS OPTIMISTIC OVER LABOR SITUATION

Washington, April 11.—"Although unemployment is not diminishing, the general industrial situation is not so bad," Secretary of Labor Davis said today. The Secretary said that there was little industrial unrest throughout the country.

BOMBS ARE HURLED AT TROOPS

Irish Republicans Attack Building Housing Black and Tans on Dublin Quayside

By International News Service.

London, April 11.—A daring attempt was made by Sinn Feiners today to blow up the Holyhead Hotel, on the quayside in Dublin, headquarters of the Black and Tans.

A force of Sinn Feiners surrounded the hotel and sent a hail of bombs through the windows. A deafening roar of successive explosions followed, startling all Dublin. Thousands were aroused from their sleep.

The whole front wall of the hotel was blown away. Sixty Black and Tans made their home at the place. The attackers escaped.

The swing bridges along the quayside on each side of the hotel were opened immediately and then withdrawn by the Sinn Feiners to prevent pursuit. When the Black and Tans rushed into the street a violent volley of rifle and revolver fire opened.

It is impossible to give an estimate of the casualties.

COAL SUPPLY STOPPAGE HOLDS UP CUNARDER

London, April 11.—The Cunard Line has been compelled to cancel the sailing of the liner Berengaria from Southampton on April 16. The stoppage of the coal supply is assigned as the reason.

EX-STATE OFFICIAL IS DEAD

Trefry Despondent Over Loss of Position When Supplanted by Henry F. Long

W. D. T. Trefry, former Massachusetts commissioner of corporations and taxation, committed suicide today by shooting himself in the head at his home, No. 187 Washington street, Marblehead.

Close friends of the former tax official said that he had been brooding over the loss of his position at the State House.

He pondered over the matter so much that his mind became unbalanced and the attempt at self-destruction followed.

His wife said he went to breakfast this morning at the usual hour, but he was unusually quiet. Then he went upstairs to his room and shot himself.

Mrs. Trefry said a few minutes later she heard a report and supposed it to be the bursting of an automobile tire outside. But she was in doubt and decided to investigate up stairs.

There she found her husband lying on the floor, with blood streaming from his head, and a revolver by his side.

Doctors were summoned and they found his condition too serious to allow his being removed to a hospital.

Trefry was sixty-nine years old. He had been a familiar figure at the State House for many years. He was first elected State auditor, then was appointed bank commissioner and for

Timid Spring Shocked by April Snowfall

The first snowfall of Spring visited Boston today, adding to the general cheerlessness induced by lowering skies, spitting showers and low temperature.

Depressed commuters, harassed by income taxes and this and that, peered into depleted coal bins, and muttered fitfully: "Oh, to dodge New England when April is here."

Shrinking Spring fauna, betrayed by previous intervals of almost Summer heat, shuddered and died painfully deaths while purveyors of heavy underwear chortled with unholy glee.

Light local snows were falling in parts of Southern New England, while below freezing temperatures were reported from the frigid North, Burlington, Vt., registering 20.

Unofficially it was predicted that today's cold weather would continue through tonight, but a ray of hope penetrated the murk when the weather man stated tomorrow would probably be fair with rising temperatures.

Following a raw, cold Sunday, when the mercury reached a high point of 53, it began to drop at 1 a. m. today was down to 46. From that figure it continued its steady descent until at 9 o'clock the official thermometer registered only 37.

Despite popular belief to the contrary, this was not the coldest April it on record. That doubtful honor laving been won by April 11, 1895, when the mercury went to 27.

Building Stimulated by Tax Exemption

New York, April 11.—Home building in New York in the first five weeks since the tax exemption ordinance became effective, February 25, increased 76 per cent., compared with the corresponding period of 1920, Henry H. Curran, president of the Borough of Manhattan, said that plans for 2,564 dwellings were filed in the five-week period this year against 2,029 in 1920.

BOY, AGED 9, DROWNED IN SPRINGFIELD RIVER

Springfield, April 11.—Tony Farse, aged nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patsey Farno of Willow street, was drowned in Mill River. With several companions the boy was playing on the cement abutment in the rear of York street jail. He lost his footing and fell in. Police and jail guards recovered his body an hour afterwards.

R. W. SMITH GETS THREE MONTHS

Former Coalition Official and Woman Found Guilty; Both Appeal

Randolph Wellford Smith, former vice-president and publicity man for the Loyal Coalition, and Elizabeth Shepherd Smith, with whom he was arrested on a serious charge three weeks ago, were found guilty by Judge Sullivan in the Municipal Court today. Each was sentenced to three months. Smith's sentence is to the House of Correction on Deer Island. The woman's sentence is to the Charles street jail.

Both appealed from the sentence, and were held in $300 bail each for the Superior Court.

Smith and the woman were arrested in Worcester on the complaint of a woman claiming to be the real Mrs. Smith.

She alleged that Smith had deserted her and their seven children in Washington in 1907, and that she had not seen or heard from him since then.

Smith severed his connection with the Loyal Coalition last October after a dispute with Democrat Lloyd, president of that organization.

SUPREME COURT TO PASS ON ELECTIONS

Newport, R. I., April 11.—The Supreme Court is to be asked to decide the results of the two town meetings held last week, one in Jamestown and the other in Tiverton. In Jamestown the election of a town treasurer and the town's representative of the Newport and Jamestown Steam Ferry Company's directorate is in question. In the Tiverton case the court is to be asked to decide the election of a town sergeant.

GIRL WITNESS TO SLAYING SOUGHT

Mystery followed mystery today in the police probe of the murder of Patrolman James Arthur Preston of Wakefield, for which Clarence W. Loud, Melrose shoe salesman, is under arrest.

Central figure in the baffling murder problem is an unidentified young woman who is alleged to have been in Loud's company in a lonely section of North Wakefield when the officer was shot and killed.

Search for this "mystery woman" turns upon a button from a girl's dress or coat, of a peculiar design, and it is expected she will be arrested, or at least questioned, within a few hours.

This button was found in the bottom of Loud's car shortly after the shooting, according to the police.

Coupled with the evidence that screams were heard just after the shooting and that somebody fled screaming, it is accepted by the authorities as satisfactory evidence that the suspect had a female companion; that she saw the killing, and that it was to save her from public scandal the officer was killed, after he had taken the names of the pair for sitting in an unlighted automobile on a lonely section of road.

Loud today denied that there had been any "mystery woman" or that he had any knowledge of the slaying of Patrolman Preston.

He stuck to his story that bandits assaulted him Saturday night between Melrose and Lynnfield Centre, took his car and gun away and left him unconscious in the roadway.

A technical plea of not guilty was entered when he was arraigned in Malden District Court, and he was held without bail until April 21. A large crowd filled the courtroom. Loud showed little emotion or knowledge of their presence.

The suspect's wife was still loyally accepting his story of the bandits today and corroborating it so far as possible.

She produced as confirmatory evidence that he had marks on his face and head such as he said the robbers inflicted on him; that he had actually met out Saturday night to deliver an antique mirror to a man in Lynnfield Center; that one witness has been discovered who saw a policeman talking with two men in an automobile near the shooting just before it occurred, although the State does not contend that her husband had a male companion; and that his action in coming home and allowing her to call the police was that of an innocent man.

Further mystery was injected into the case when police found evidence that there had been some sort of

EX-KAISERIN IS DEAD AT DOORN

Expires in Exile With Former Emperor; to Be Buried at Potsdam

By International News Service.

Doorn, Holland, April 11.—Ex-Empress Augusta Victoria of Germany died at Doorn Castle at 4 o'clock this morning. The death bulletin signed by Court Marshal von Gontard, read:

"Her Majesty the Empress and Queen Augusta Victoria died this morning at 4 o'clock after long illness. Funeral will be held at Potsdam."

The former Kaiser and Prince Adalbert, her youngest son, were at the ex-Kaiserin's bedside when the end came. They left her apartments immediately after her death.

The tolling of the bells in the church steeples of Doorn announced the death to the public here.

Berlin in Morning for Former Kaiserin

By International News Service.

Berlin, April 11.—The Empress is dead! The news from Doorn that Augusta Victoria had succumbed at last to the heart disease she had gamely fought for months struck all Germany with the force of a stunning blow.

BUTTON CLEW TO WOMAN HUNTED IN MURDER OF POLICEMAN

a struggle in the automobile itself, although it had previously been held that all the trouble was in the road-way.

This evidence consisted of the closed metal button with the peculiar floral design on the strength of which they expect to arrest the "mystery woman," which was found in the road near Bowdoin square, and an abandoned bottle, which had contained liquor.

Conclusion of their examination of the body of the slain police officer is said to have shown that one or more of the four 45-calibre bullets was fired after he lay on the ground.

It is now believed the first shot entered his back. Preston was a determined man, who served with the 26th Division Military police overseas, and it is believed if he had a chance for life he would have given a better account of himself.

In this connection today it was stated that Loud was a crack shot and a member of the Gun Clubs of the U. S. A. He has admitted he always carried a 45 revolver when out in his automobile nights.

The gun with which Patrolman Preston was shot has not yet been found. Lake Quannapowitt, near the scene of the shooting was being dragged today, on the theory that the slayer hurled the weapon from him as he ran from the vicinity of the crime.

The woman with Loud Saturday night evidently gave the name of Alice Dennett, Hudson street, Somerville," when the officer took their names.

A slip of paper in the policeman's hand contained this name, and that of Loud.

Loud, nursing several bruises on his head, protests his innocence, but on the advice of his counsel, Associate Justice Malcom E. Sturtevant, he refuses to discuss the case.

In a statement at the time of his arrest he claimed to have been waylaid by robbers, between Wakefield and Lynnfield, near the Saugus line. The next he knew he was wandering in a daze, he said.

On reaching home he informed his wife of the robbery and she notified the police.

Loud's Ford sedan was found by Patrolmen Sullivan and Roby of Saugus in a path off the road beyond Castle Rock, in Wakefield, near Saugus.

Preston's body was found by Frederick M. Libby and two other men in the road in Lowell street, Libby heard the shots and went to the scene to investigate.

Libby states that after hearing the shots and starting in their direction, he saw a Ford sedan car rush by him at a fast rate of speed.

Edward M. Searory, of Vernon street, Wakefield, has stated to the police that he was returning from Montrose when he saw Patrolman Preston standing alongside a Ford sedan with a man at the wheel and but another person, either a man or woman was standing behind the machine.

An autopsy performed by Medical Examiner Roscoe D. Perley of Melrose disclosed that the dead officer had been shot four times with a forty-five-caliber revolver. One bullet entered the right side of the back, passing through the body and came out above the heart, striking the officer's badge and bending it. Another bullet was located in the victim's left shoulder. There were also bullet wounds in the right wrist and the cheek and neck.

TUFTS' STATEMENT.

District Attorney Tufts, giving out an official statement said:

"We have established the fact that Loud was on Lowell street, Wakefield, at the time of the murder of Patrolman Preston, Saturday night, and that Preston attempted to place him and a woman under arrest on a statutory charge.

"The name and address of Loud was obtained by the officer and written on a paper. An automobile ment, belonging to Loud, the character of which I do not wish to state, was found in the dead officer's possession. There is no doubt that a woman was with him.

SEEKING WOMAN.

"We are trying to find this woman. At present we are inclined to believe that the name and address both may be fictitious.

"It was Preston's method to take the operator's license whenever he had occasion to make an arrest under similar circumstances.

"Preston had been connected with many such cases, a large number of arrests for misdemeanors of that sort having been made by him during the year that he was connected with the Wakefield force.

"We have a very good piece of evidence from a man who passed by and heard some of the conversation between the officer and the man and woman. A partial identification may also be expected.

BOTH SEEN TO RUN.

"Both were seen to run after the shooting to a sedan, which they ran at a high rate of speed and turned off into Vernon street.

"Loud was arrested on the Metropolitan Park reservation on July 17, 1919, and was subsequently in the Woburn court charged with having his car unlighted on a excluded road. A woman was with him at that time. He was fined $5 in the Woburn District Court.

"I came into the case and have in my possession evidence that convinces me that we need not go any further. "Medical Examiner Perley and Dr. O'Leary performed an autopsy and believe that the officer was shot four or five times with a 45-calibre revolver.

"Loud said that he owned a 45-calibre revolver and had it in his possession and that it was fully loaded. No revolver was found in the car and Loud has not told us where the gun is. He says he does not know.

"Loud is represented by Judge Malcolm E. Sturtevant of Melrose, an intimate friend. Loud was formally notified of the charge and at the advice of counsel made no statement.

"He was informed of his rights, that anything he said might be used against him, and therefore he has made no statement and has not been asked for one.

"He was asked during the questioning about the bumps on his head, one on the front and one on the back. He said he was held up on the road going toward Lynnfield, having stopped because of engine trouble. He said a party came along and offered to help and that the next he knew he was walking along the car tracks toward his home in a dazed condition. He did not say, so far as I know, whether it was an officer or civilian who held him up.

SHOE CHANGE BAFFLING.

"He said that he was going to take an antique mirror to Lynnfield. A broken mirror was found in the car. One or two other things were found in the car, but at present I do not wish to go farther as to what they were. The mirror was eighteen by twelve inches.

"The clothes worn by Loud have been taken possession of by State Officer Smith.

"It is true that Loud wore pumps when he came down state, but just what significance they may have in the case I am not prepared to say. Yes, it is true that men do not ordinarily wear pumps when they drive automobiles. Whether Loud intentionally put on different shoes or not I am not prepared to say or even guess.

ADMITS WAS IN VICINITY.

"Loud has positively admitted that he was in Wakefield and vicinity.

"Mrs. Loud reported that her husband had been held up and assaulted. Chief Kerr says that in the telephone conversation nothing was said regarding his car or other property having been taken from him.

"Preston, so far as we can judge, was writing the woman's name in his notebook at the time he was shot. He had it in his left hand. There was no evidence to indicate that the body had been dragged at all."

Loud, who was Boston district salesman for the Atlas shoe, made by the Rice & Hutchins Company, is forty-two years old. He was born in Merrimac, where his family was prominent for years. His father, the late Lemuel C. Loud, was engaged in carriage manufacturing. After his marriage to Miss Ida Mathers of Epping, N. H., he lived in Somerville for ten years, moving to Melrose five years ago. He resides in an attractive home on the East Side. Besides his wife, he has one son, Richard, sixteen, captain of the Melrose High baseball team, and a daughter, Doris, thirteen. His mother and his mother-in-law reside at his home.

FUNERAL PLANS.

Plans were made today for the funeral of Patrolman Preston, which will be held Tuesday morning from the home of the family. There will be a high mass of requiem in St. Joseph's Church at 10 o'clock. Military honors will be paid the policeman, who was a member of Corp Nelson Post of the American Legion. He served in the 101st Military Police during the war. There will be a police escort at the funeral, and members of the Wakefield Council, K. of C., of which the deceased was a member, will attend the services. The K. of C. this afternoon adopted resolutions on the death of the officer. Flags on public buildings were placed at half-staff today.

Besides his mother, Mrs. Mary Preston, the victim leaves eight sisters. Mrs. Margaret McCarthy of Stoneham, Mrs. Isabel Smith, Mrs. Florence Corron, Mrs. Mary Walsh, Mrs. Sarah Reynolds, Misses Julia, Lillian and Helen Preston of Wakefield, and three brothers, Patrolman Joseph L. Preston, John I. Preston a lawyer, and Edward Preston, a Boston College student. He was one of a family of seventeen children.

One of the occupants, thought to have been the "mystery woman," was called by the policeman for questioning and walked with him to the spot where his lifeless body was later found. The assassin is believed to have fired the four shots into Preston's back while he was thus engaged. In the oval is a photo of Clarence W. Loud, Melrose salesman, charged with Preston's murder, posed especially today for the Boston American. The button, also shown, is the only tangible clew to the woman sought by the police as a witness to the tragedy.

A New Animal Story From Connecticut

Goodyear, Ct., April 11.—George Brown of this town, who created considerable discussion by claiming to have found a grey squirrel with six legs and a chipmunk with no tail, has put over another. Brown astonished local animal experts by announcing that he has a thirty-five-year-old rat in his house which is equipped with false teeth.

Wheeler Sees Anarchy in Liberty League

Washington, April 11.—A bitter attack upon the "self-determination League of Liberty," the purpose of which he declares will lead to anarchy, is made in a formal statement issued by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

"No one will be fooled by this sugar-coated beer organization," declares Wheeler. "Both the anti-blue law organization, through the admission of its president, and this self-determination organization, by its expressed purpose, are nothing more than beer and wine organizations to prevent the enforcement of prohibition. Their sweet-scented names do not change their purpose. If you can defy prohibition by a self-determination league you can defy any other law. Each one will determine for himself what laws he will obey. This means anarchy."

WORK HORSE PARADE PLANS PROGRESSING

The Boston Work Horse Relief Association announces two new classes, with suitable prizes, at the Memorial Day parade, one for teams of five horses, and one for "spike" teams of three horses. In the first of these classes the famous five chestnuts owned by the C. Bowen Company will be shown. Entries are coming in fast. Entry blanks can be obtained at the Ashton Lawrence Hospital, No. 169 Northampton street, and also of Gennaro Testa, No. 323 North street, as well as at the office of the Association, No. 15 Beacon street.

General Pershing, Admiral Sims, and other prominent men were characterized as enemies of the Irish, by Edward P. McSweeney, who addressed 1,200 members of Osanam Council, K. of C., at a communion breakfast in St. Mary's Hall, Prospect street, Cambridge. "I hope that no branch of the Knights of Columbus will ever invite either of these two men to speak from their platforms," said McSweeney. "Their past statements have proved that they are enemies to the Irish people."

LONG MISSING BRIDE FOUND IN ATLANTA

Atlanta, Ga., April 11.—Mrs. Dorothy Vackerys, who disappeared from her home in New York on November 25, three days after she had been married to George Vackerys, a sailor, was found in Atlanta Friday and was turned over to her father, Andrew Keahon, Saturday. They are supposed to have left at once for New York. The young woman was taken into custody at a Western Union office where she was waiting for a reply to a telegram sent to her father in New York asking him to send her money, on May 4.

BAKERS STRIKE IN NEW BEDFORD

Protest Open Shop and Alleged Violation of Working Agreements

New Bedford, April 11.—The first bakers' strike in New England against the open shop was started here today, when every baker in the city went out.

The bakers' union voted to quit all shops which had violated the master bakers' agreement with the union or had declared for the open shop, to be effective May 1, and that includes every bakery here.

The strike vote was passed after Samuel Ross of the State Board of Labor and Industry had been in conference with the master bakers and they had refused his offer of arbitration.

SOCIETY LEADER WAS BETRAYED

Wife of Stillman's Business Friend Exposed "Love Nest" Scandal

New York, April 11.—Who is the woman who went to Mrs. James (Pitt Potter) Stillman, advised her to fight back to "the last ditch" against her banker husband and supplied her with the first information of "Franklin Harold Leeds" and Mrs. Florence Leeds?

Ever since word was given that a prominent woman of New York had "tipped off" the sued wife, or her husband's "nights out," Fifth avenue and Wall street have been attempting to pierce the veil of her identity. But friends and intimates of Mrs. Stillman said today that the woman's name probably never will be made public.

Only the following rather indefinite scatterings of information about her have been learned:

FLED FROM VILLA.

She was among the mutual friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stillman, who were entertained by Stillman at "Rest Court," the villa at Stony Brook, L. I., owned by Mrs. Pitts Duffield, when, it is asserted, Stillman was maintaining that "Love Nest" for Mrs. Leeds.

She is known to have been among those society folk who were shocked out of their conventional views when they inadvertently learned that Stillman was known as "Mr. Leeds" in the household.

The woman-informant lost no time in it related, in hailing "Rest Court" as soon as Stillman and "Mr. Leeds" were revealed to be one and the same man.

Indignant at being "lumped upon by Jim Stillman," she hastened to Mrs. Stillman, supplying the former "Pitt" Potter with her affirmative defense.

WOMAN OF SOCIAL POWER.

The husband of the woman-informant is said to be a powerful figure in Wall Street at the elbow of Jim Stillman. The woman herself is said, wields as much influence in the four hundred as does her husband in the downtown business canyons.

Friends of Mrs. Stillman pressed today to reveal the woman's name, refused to do so, claiming that mention of her name would cause untold social harm.

Mrs. Stillman, it was added, has been advised to use other informants to help the case of little Guy, whose father, Stillman inferentially attempts to prove, was Fred Beauvais, Indian guide. Mrs. Stillman, it was indicated, is prepared to bring a number of persons into court in behalf of Guy, in fact, her friends said she is making the whole bitter fight for Guy.

HUSBAND FINDS MAN IN EVELYN NESBIT'S APARTMENT IN RAID

SCANDAL DENIED BY WIFE

Mrs. Jack Clifford Says She Housed Employe for Her Protection

New York, April 11.—Evelyn Nesbit, one time wife of Harry Thaw, executed her lawyers today to determine what legal recourse she has against her husband, Jack Clifford, and the private detectives who smashed down her apartment door Saturday morning in an effort to secure divorce evidence.

Clifford and his wife have been separated for some time. A suit and counter-suit for divorce are pending between them.

BREAKS DOWN DOOR.

At 1:46 o'clock in the morning Clifford, accompanied by three detectives and a friend named Daniels, went to Miss Nesbit's apartment at No. 235 West 52d street, and broke down the door after an ineffectual effort to enter by pretending they wanted to deliver a telegram to a James Johnson.

Miss Nesbit declared Johnson is an employe of hers in a tea room she is starting on the ground floor of the building she occupies, and that he had been sleeping in her living quarters because she was afraid to remain at night in an otherwise unoccupied building. He corroborated her statement.

Clifford was satisfied with the result of the raid and said he had obtained further evidence for presentation in his divorce action.

His wife, on the other hand, said: "This is the worst of the dastardly outrages Jack Clifford has perpetrated upon me. There is nothing in the world between Jimmie Johnson and me. The boy works for me.

"SLEEPING IN LIVING ROOM."

"At my own request—and much against his wishes—he has been staying here nights, sleeping on a couch in the living room. I dared not stay alone in an empty building at night. I had to have some protection.

"God will punish that awful Jack Clifford for what he has done. It is true they broke in here, and if I'd had a revolver I'd have shot them all. But most of the things they say are lies. Jimmie was here, yes, and he'll be here today and tomorrow night, and every night until I have some other protection."

GORE DECLARES IRISH WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

"Ireland will never give up her fight for freedom as long as there is an Irishman left to fight," declared former Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma at a meeting in aid the Irish relief fund drive at the South Boston Municipal Building. He declared the greatest need now is to feed the Irish people in their distress and paid high tribute to the courage and fortitude of the Irish women, whose sacrifice is making the battle possible.

Joseph A. Maynard, chairman of the district committee, announced a tag day on April 23. Rev. Mortimer E. Twomey of St. Eulalia's Church, a contribution of $700 from the parish. Other speakers were Mayor Curley, Gov.-Gen.-elect Edward L. Logan were James A. Dorsey, president of the Charitable Irish Society and William J. Day.

HUB TO HONOR ITALIAN ENVOY

Will Be Feted Here by Officials and Countrymen

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Governor Channing Cox and Senator David I. Walsh will be guests at the formal banquet to be tendered to the Italian Ambassador, Vittorio Orlando-Diez at the Copley-Plaza next Sunday evening.

The ambassador is expected to reach the South Station next Friday, where he will be welcomed to the city by representatives of the Mayor and the Governor, as well as by the Italian Consul, Marquis A. Ferrunto di Ruffano, and the Italian reception committee of wounded Italian war veterans.

An elaborate dinner will be tendered his excellency at the Copley-Plaza by the Italian committee Friday evening. On Saturday he will visit Harvard, where he will be guest of honor at a reception and luncheon at which President Emeritus Eliot will preside. Later that afternoon he will go to Lawrence, where he has been invited to inspect a number of factories, and where he will be the guest of the Italians of that city at a reception and banquet.

Sunday he will return to Boston and will attend the dedication of the Union Building at No. 380 Hanover street, where Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L. will preside. Later he will attend a mass meeting of the Italian societies at the Parkman bandstand on the Common. The banquet at the Copley-Plaza will follow this. Monday he will visit the navy yard and be the guest of Governor Cox at luncheon. He will leave for Fall River that evening.

LEGION SERVICE BUREAU FORMED

Interests of Disabled Veterans Will Be Looked After by Organization

Washington, April 11.—A personal service bureau has been established at No. 1722 I street, this city, by the American Legion to care for relief work, hospitalization and compensation claims for ex-soldiers.

It will be known as the National Service Division of the American Legion. Albert E. Haan, a Legionaire, a former official of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, and himself a wounded veteran, who has been treated in twelve different hospitals, is director of the new service.

The bureau will be functioning under a full head of steam by Wednesday. The chief purpose of this new service is to do away with "paper work" in handling the affairs of the disabled veterans. A trained force will be directed by Haan to make personal contact with the officials of the War Risk Bureau, the Federal Board for Vocational Education, and the Public Health Service effective.

They will not write to the officials of these agencies, but they will see them personally, examine the records in all cases of complaints, supply information that is lacking, and in a general way, act as the special representatives of boys whose affairs have been neglected or improperly considered. No case will be abandoned until it is completed to the satisfaction of the applicant.

Einstein Accused of 'Stealing' His Theory

Minneapolis, April 11.—That the Albert Einstein theory of relativity in its gravitational aspects was advanced in 1866, thirteen years before Einstein was born, by a scientist known under the pen name of "Kinertia" was the assertion made by Professor Arved Reuterdahl, dean of the engineering school of St. Thomas College in St. Paul.

He challenged the savant to defend his theories in a written debate.

Professor Reuterdahl declared Einstein was not only deceiving scientists with a mythical theory but that he was either a plagiarist or his work had been antedated by another without his knowledge.

He then cited "Kinertia," whose theory was expounded in eleven articles running in Harper's Weekly in 1874, according to Professor Reuterdahl. These give "Kinertia" credit for the so-called Einstein theory of gravitation, which is a later development of the theory of relativity.

The theory of relativity itself, says Einstein's challenger, was made public exactly one year before authorities on Einstein's work credit him with having made the discovery.

In 1866, says Professor Reuterdahl, there was a paper on this subject, published in Berlin in the Journal Steinugsberichte.

MINERS CONFER WITH PREMIER

Owners and Men's Leaders Seek Basis for Avoiding Triple Alliance Strike

London, April 11.—"All mine districts are now adequately protected," said an official communique by the Board of Trade shortly after Premier Lloyd George had had an hour's conference today with the executive officers of the miners' federation and the mine owners for the purpose of arriving at a basis on which the triple alliance strike, threatened for Tuesday, can be averted.

Occupation of the strike-ridden coal fields by government forces has been completed and the situation is described as entirely peaceful. The striking miners appear to be heeding the warning of the federation not to interfere with the safety of the mines or with the government forces.

The miners' representatives went to Unity Hall, for an executive meeting, after they had conferred with Premier Lloyd George at the Board of Trade headquarters. The Prime Minister, accompanied by Sir Robert Horner, Chancellor of the Exchequer, went to Downing street. There were indications that both sides were satisfied with the preliminary discussion, though some labor leaders took pains to emphasize that the crisis is by no means over.

LLOYD GEORGE OPENS MEETING.

Lloyd George opened the conference with a grave speech in which he pictured the price which a continuation of the industrial warfare would cost the entire nation. After he had finished Sir Robert Horne presided at the meeting.

Large crowds waited in front of the Board of Trade Building for news as to the progress of negotiations. No. 10 Downing street also was besieged by a throng of curious.

At the War Office and Scotland Yard thousands of men reported for volunteer service in the emergency force.

Premier Lloyd George's secretary announced shortly after the conference that there was no actual progress to record.

VIOLENCE SUBSIDING.

Spokesmen of the transport workers' organization reiterated today that the members would go on strike at midnight tonight unless the negotiations proved favorable to the miners. The triple alliance heads continued in session for several hours to make preparations for a general strike.

The wave of violence in the coal fields showed signs of abatement today. In the Rhondda Valley mines volunteers were at work pumping without being interfered with by strikers. In West Fife, however, strikers are preventing pumping and police reserves are being rushed to the scene.

The Admiralty denied today that naval men are being used for pumping. It is stated that they were only guarding admiralty property.

WILSON BLAMED FOR YAP ROW

French Writer Quotes Records to Show Protest Was Not Made

Paris, April 11.—President Wilson's reservations regarding the island of Yap were really only the mildest kind of protests and were not calculated to inform the Supreme Council as to the real opinion of the United States.

This is according to revelations by Pertinax, in Echo de Paris. Pertinax introduces stenographic records to show that the American delegates throughout the peace conference allowed the Jap mandate for Yap to be achieved in silence.

"Although at first glance the Yap question does not concern France, there are declared, nevertheless, to be the good reasons why the matter is important not only to France, but to all the allies.

BAD FAITH CHARGED.

"The first is that certain Americans have accused the French statesmen of a lack of good faith. The second reason is that the Yap affair marks the commencement of a terrific rivalry in the Pacific, which is becoming more pronounced daily.

"In a rapid resume of the facts, we find that in January and February, 1917, the allies agreed to give Japan Kiao-Chaou, Shantung, and the Pacific Islands which formed a part of the German Empire.

"In April, the United States, driven by U-boat outrages, came into the war, whereupon Mr. Balfour, the allied commissioner at Washington, informed President Wilson of the allied pact with Japan. Balfour himself affirms that this is true.

"In his defense President Wilson stated 'the United States made reservations on the Yap question on April 23 and 30 and May 1, 1919,' while the decision to award the mandate to Japan was taken on May 7.'

"To prove that President Wilson was mistaken in his statement we have only to take the stenographic records. We find in them no mention of the Yap talk during the session of April 23. On April 26 Mr. Lansing said: 'Would it not be desirable in the interest of good cable communication to internationalize the island of Yap?'

"But Mr. Lansing dropped the matter upon the motion by the Japanese delegate, Baron Makurino.

WILSON'S STAND.

"On the council of the big four on April 30, President Wilson said: 'Yap should not be in the possession of one power.'

"Once again no decision was taken and the demand was not pressed. On May 7, Lloyd George proposed to attribute the different mandates, including the Japanese to receive the islands of the North Pacific islands situated north of the Equator.'

"Although this plainly referred to Yap, President Wilson signified complete assent. The Allies, in view of these facts cannot be accused of perfidy."

Runaway Girls Just 'Drift' Into Danger

New York, April 11.—A new answer to the old question "Why Girls Go Wrong?" is supplied today by the annual report of the New York Probation and Protective Association.

"The delinquent girl isn't a specialtype. She isn't born that way. She isn't necessarily subnormal in mentality," says the report. "Usually she is simply the victim of circumstances."

"The report is based on observation of 1,650 girls cared for during the past year, of whom 406 were first offenders.

A special cross-section study of 695 girls, chosen at random from among the delinquents, showed that 53 per cent. were mentally normal.

"The incorrigible girl is not a type," says the report.

"The unmarried mother is not a type.

"Half of the runaway girls are normally bright."

Here are some of the specific reasons given "why girls leave home:"

"One runs away from a wretched or immoral home.

"Another follows the lead of an undesirable girl companion.

"A third runs away to get work or an education or to realize some long cherished plan.

"Sometimes she enters an immoral life because of the environment into which she is born.

"The unmarried mother may be a bright girl deserted by a man who has promised marriage, a mentally defective girl who follows the line of least resistance.

"The feeble-minded girl gives birth to a child is an incident in her career and does not digerentiate her in any way from other girls who need help."

GIRL WED UNCLE; TRIES SUICIDE

Gun Wrested From Her Grasp After Husband Is Arrested for Marrying Her

Baltimore, April 11.—"O God, I can't live without him!"

Uttering this exclamation, after being told that her husband, Edward Rinehart, thirty-eight years old, who also is her uncle, had been arrested because he violated the law in marrying her, Mrs. Grace Rinehart, ran to her room in her home and was pointing a loaded revolver at her head when patrolmen rushed in and took the weapon from her.

The policemen had been sent to the house to take the girl into custody and held her as a willing witness against her husband.

After the husband had been held for the Baltimore county authorities on a charge of marrying his niece in Towsonon on March 31, the young wife again threatened to take her life.

"You stopped me once, but you won't do it again," she screamed. "I'm going to blow my brains out and end it all!" When her hysterics were quieted she was taken home to her father, Henry Mullen.

The arrest of Rinehart followed a complaint made by the girl's parents, in the young wife said that when she was married her parents knew of it and that her father gave her $10 to help pay the expenses of the wedding.

Several times she interrupted her story to declare: "I love him, I love him."

LONGE CASE IS GIVEN TO JURY

Retire for Consideration After Instruction by Judge Moulton

Rutland, Vt., April 11.—The fate of Peter W. Longe, on trial here for the murder of Owen Hayes at Fairhaven on October 1, was placed in the hands of the jury today.

The case was given to them this morning after Judge Moulton had charged them, describing the state's case and outlining homicide cases and pointed out the various degrees of murder and manslaughter in which the jury of man can be found guilty.

Sunday was a dismal day for Longe, who was forced to spend the day in Rutland jail without a visit from any friends or relatives.

Mrs. Mary Longe, the fifteen-year-old daughter, whose brave fight on the witness stand to save her father was the feature of the trial, has been staying in Rutland this week, but did not go near him.

The jurors, who are quartered at the Berwick Hotel, were taken to the Second Congregational Church Sunday morning and in the afternoon were motored for miles accompanied by deputy sheriffs.

Will Boston Pass Robes That Shocked Paris?

Will the consternation in Paris spread to the United States with the Aphrodite robe? The sketches were drawn from recent importations on Fifth avenue. Lady Derby has protested against this newest creation.

The Aphrodite Robe has arrived.

After striving British and French society to the foundations and making trouble in social and style circles at Paris and London the latest creation of French modistes comes to precipitate a storm in the New World.

Lady Derby, wife of the Earl of Derby, has denounced the robe and even in Paris there has been so much protest from public and pulpit that the Aphrodite cloth has been forced to find some means for warding off the adverse criticism.

In Boston the robe has not yet reached the street, but it has been seen in some of the more exclusive modiste and in the homes of a few of the ultra fashionable.

The robe is not so very daring—until the wearer walks about the streets or dances. Then—well then even the French designers admit that it is a bit risque. Experts describe it as not difficult to wear, with the bodice open under the arms to the waist line. The back is slightly above the waist, and a string of beads holds the robe in place over the shoulder. The skirt droops a little below the knee.

Gowns far less startling than the Aphrodite have caused storms of disapproval when worn in the United States. What will happen when the Aphrodite becomes fashionable—if it should?

HARRIS ADMITS ELWELL HOAX

Confessed "Slayer," Grilled by Whitman, Wanted to Die —Will Be Freed

Buffalo, N. Y., April 11.—Charles S. Whitman, special assistant district attorney of New York, kept Roy Harris out of bed a good part of last night for the purpose of either breaking down or building up Harris' story that he and a man named Duncan had been hired to kill Joseph B. Blackwell, New York sportsman and wild expert.

When Whitman finished with Harris he was convinced that the man was a liar. Harris, in fact, admitted that his atohy was a pure fabrication. Former Governor said he accepted as the truth the second statement repudiating the confession.

"Harris showed plainly," said Mr. Whitman, "that he had not the slightest knowledge of the facts in the Elwell murder case except what he had read in the newspapers."

MAY BE RELEASED.

Following the session at the sheriff's office, Harris was turned over to the custody of District Attorney Moore, who ordered him held at the Jail. Whitman said that he would question the man again, although he regarded as "very remote" the possibility that Harris would be taken to New York as a witness.

It is probable that Harris will be released soon, Moore said. The St. Catherine, Ont., police do not want him on the check forging charge, which was the cause of his arrest here. Unless some other city wants him on some other charge, he will go free.

There seemed to be no disposition to prosecute him on a perjury charge in connection with his sworn Elwell murder testimony. His wife, who has been held as a witness, will also be released.

SICK OF LIFE, HE SAYS.

"After all what was your object in telling the story in the first place claiming to have had a part in a killing about which you know nothing?" Harris was asked.

"I was sick of life and everything in general and I was determined to go the limit. I made up my ind I had disgraced my people for the last time; that this time would be the last even if I went to the chair for it," he replied.

"Then you meant to commit suicide?"

"Well, you can put it that way."

GHOST-PROOF JURY PICKED

Must Determine Whether the Ouija Board Lied in Slander Action

Joliet, Ill., April 11.—A ghost-proof jury has been picked in Circuit Court here to determine whether the Ouija board lied when it said Mr. and Mrs. Frank Waters stole ten pounds of raisins, a pack of potatoes and a carload of coal from Albert Yost.

Trial was begun today to see if Waters and his wife are entitled to $10,000 damages from Mrs. Yost, whom they charge with repeating Ouija's statement to the neighbors without telling them where she got the information.

Mrs. Yost, it is said, does not deny the statement but expresses confidence in the Ouija board.

Considerable delay was experienced in securing a jury because some of the veniremen admitted they believed in ghosts, while others said they placed credence in the Ouija.

Frank Smith, a farmer, was challenged and said:

"Sure, I believe in ghosts. I remember seeing one when I was a kid. I don't know anything about the Ouija board, but there might be something to it."

He was excused.

Another said he was not sure that ghosts were not wandering around, although he had never seen any.

"I've seen my dog bark at things I couldn't see," he said. "Besides, I have a niece who sees ghosts regularly."

A third talesman said, "I have an Ouija board myself. It told me once not to buy a calf. I went ahead and bought it anyhow and the calf died."

It was only the attorneys for the plaintiffs who objected to these jurors. The defense said it was willing to accept them.

LYNN "BONE DRY" EDICT FAILS TO LAND MANY

Lynn policemen met with scant success in their efforts to carry out the edict of Mayor Creamer for an absolutely "bone dry" week end, for, despite their efforts only five bookings of a grievous nature were recorded on the police station blotter, as compared with the customary record of at least a score.

A soldier was brought in with a patent medicine bottle, a second with a denatured alcohol bottle and a third with no bottle but none the less prepared for the stomach pump treatment. These remained in jail, but the other two were in better shape and were admitted to bail.

CUP DEFENDER STARTS ROW

Efforts to Disbar Mayflower Likely on Ground She Was Built for Racing

Gloucester, April 11.—Tomorrow afternoon, from the same stocks where in 1904 the schooner Esperanto slid into the water, the Boston schooner Mayflower will be launched. She will defend the International trophy, won at Halifax by the Gloucester schooner last October.

The Mayflower is the latest word in the ship builders' art, laid out along the lines of a typical racing yacht rather than the usual fisherman.

Many contend that the American committee working in conjunction with the Canadian officials will make an effort to disbar the Boston boat on the grounds that fishing is a secondary business with the owners of the boat.

CHARGE NON-EMPLOYMENT.

As one official pointed out today the owners never have been in any way connected with the fishing industry and rumor has it that after the cup is won by the Mayflower she is to be sold to a wealthy New Yorker to be used as a pleasure craft.

Pointing out the disadvantages of the Mayflower as a fisherman, one old time captain said that her foremast was stepped too far forward for the length of keel to be of any service in running under a foresail in a blow.

Captain Henry Larkin, who is to sail the Mayflower, says he has been fishing long enough to know a real schooner, and if there ever was a clinch-jack sailer it owns in this newly built boat. The Mayflower presents a pretty appearance in the James and Dames yard at Essex and if ever there was a Herreshoff model displayed on a sailing craft of any description it certainly is prominent on the Mayflower. In fact, it is openly stated that the plans were drawn by that famous designer of racing yachts and turned over to Sterling Burgess for his signature.

REBUFFED BY OWNERS.

The secretary of the local board of trade representing the American committee went to Boston yesterday to meet the Canadian representatives whom he was requested to escort to Essex Bay for a rehash of what in the part of some of the owners of the Mayflower. His report back to the Gloucester members of the committee aroused such indignation that efforts will be made to have the Mayflower barred from the race unless it can be conclusively shown that the Mayflower was built chiefly for fishing and not for racing as is the contention.

The Canadian representatives are expected to arrive in Gloucester today. Ronald Bell, editor of the Halifax Herald, who donated the trophy, has repeatedly, in person and editorials, said that no freak would be allowed to take away the interests of the race which was primarily for genuine deep sea fishermen manned by genuine fisherman following the sea for a living.

Gloucester stands ready to enter twenty-five fishing vessels in an elimination race for Mayflower honors, by this Fall if the Mayflower is not allowed to participate.

MIDDLESEX CARPENTERS ACCEPT COMPROMISE

Carpenters in the Middlesex District, including Woburn, Winchester, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield and Lexington returned to work this morning after being on strike since February 14 as the result of a compromise reached through the efforts of Mayor Golden of Woburn.

Mayor Golden was chosen as arbitrator by the Master Builders' Association after they had failed to reach an agreement on the 90 cents an hour wage schedule presented by the Master Builders. He suggested a compromise at 95 cents an hour, after hearing both sides in the case, and his decision was accepted.

REV. C. T. CHAFE RESIGNS PASTORATE AT LYNN

After serving for ten years as pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Lynn, Rev. Cornelius Thurston Chafe has announced to leave the shoe city and will remove to the western part of the State. He read his resignation to the congregation at the morning service yesterday, to be effective May 16. He will assume the pastorate of the First Congregational Church at Great Barrington on that date.

Col. You are quite all right about the theatre.

Mrs. Alice Manley—A letter sent to you at Brunswick, Maine, has come back to me unclaimed.

M. W. M., Atlantic—Paste it over the other one.

M. C. K., Dorchester—We say that one title in the list fits the picture better than any other title in the list. When the Test is over we shall reprint the pictures with the correct titles under them. You shall be the jury.

C. W. P., Roxbury—Stop guessing, and for the love of Pete cut out that Ouija person.

L. M. Stuck—Let George do it! Eh other words, ask Dad; he knows.

T. P., Dorchester Heights—Thank you.

W. A. H., Roxbury—I have referred your request to "make 'em harder" to the legitimately artist. He's as mad as a hatter. Look out!

Bright Eyes, Portsmouth—Well, his initials are "O. A. S." you remember.

BIG NINE NOTIFIED.

Catherine—But that was all right, the rules permitted it. Tell mother she mustn't worry. If you were among the nine leaders you would have found about it by this time.

T. R. S., Providence—That's the way to talk!

Twelve Years Old, Boston.—My dear, I would not THINK of laughing at you. You want me to tell you if the title to the picture is "Mid-Channel." That is where I would be if I told you!

Anxious, Bristol, R. I. — Yes, the Big Nine must have heard of their good fortune by this time. Was they not lucky? Well, I carried good news to a nice young lady not many miles away. Now, PLEASE don't get me gabbing.

Perplexed—Your method is quite O. K.

Sit-te-te-ir, Mattapan — The nine leaders have been notified. We wanted pictures and interviews in time for next Sunday. So Sunday newspaper is written and put together in one day, you know.

Mac—The artist has worked on the Coast but not so recently.

Wanted, $1,000 — You're a faster than I am; I'd take it in nickels.

TITLE COMMENT NOT PERMITTED.

M. B., Burlington, Vt.—My own impression is that $5 has not a look-in. I think it will take better than $9 to annex a five-spot.

D. Bonntesen—I cannot believe you mean it; come in and see the letters.

E. C. O'C.—Not among the Big Nine. Interested, Westerly, R. I.—In the neighborhood of 92.

W. J. B., Norwich, Ct.—There wasn't any mistake. Stick to the same edition every day and you will have no trouble.

H. G. P., Marlboro—A mere bit of slang, old top. Diving not even the remotest connection with this Test. I beg your pardon!

Goldilocks;—"Where have you been?" The torn corner will make no difference.

W. F. D., Providence —"A little nonsense, now and then"——.

John McL., Cambridge—No arrangement of that sort has been made or is under consideration. I am not permitted to comment on the list of Titles you submit but I may and do thank you for your kind words.

NEATNESS WILL COUNT.

John F. H., Pawtucket:—A chap has to say something, you know.

A Reminder:—Young mother must-n't worry; neatness will count only in deciding a tie.

Trying Hard, East Providence—Constant attendance upon the movies and familiarity with the faces of the players DID count in the Movie Player Identity Test. In fact, it counted big. Take my word for it, in this Test knowledge of plays and players is not at all essential. The "kids" walked away with that Test; let me see them capture this one!

T. M. H., Lynn—Forget all about it, A. S., and get down to business, like a bear! Is that he is trying to spoof me. Would he be likely to write me his REAL selections For publication!

Arthur, Pawtucket—I cannot make out your surname or address. Try again.

ARTIST IS GROUCHY.

Hoping, Beverly—You want me to say "Yes or No." Yes or no.

Noname—Wait six days and I'll tell everything.

J. R., Boston—The artist declines to discuss that top with me. (He's an artful grouch).

W. L., Salem—"In Picture No. 39, is that a new road being built or an old one, under repair?" Is it a truck for steam trains or electric cars" Well, sir, I went to Mr. Artist, hat in hand, with your question, and I shall never go near the man again. Such language!

Between you and me, the big boob thinks he's the whole show. I've a good mind to walk out and leave him flat.

Joseph D., Roslindale—Paste another one over it. You will be paid by check if you prefer it.

B. F., Meads street, Allston: Indeed?

WINNERS IN MOVIE IDENTITY TEST TO BE NAMED SUNDAY

The Movie-Play Title Test Editor is going to take only one paragraph today and then give the rest of his space to correspondents.

In this one paragraph he will merely remind everybody that, Sunday after Sunday, the Boston Sunday Advertiser is "all sold out everywhere in New England." Next Sunday's Advertiser will tell the Story of the $5,000 Player Identity Test, in great detail. Thousands of you want that particular story. It will include a List of the 120 CORRECT identifications and give a List of the 719 readers who are to divide the $5,000. There will be pictures of and interviews with the Nine Leaders. The secret of the famous "masks" will be revealed, for the first time.

And that is all of that. Now, you know exactly what to expect next Sunday. Speak to Mr. Newsdealer, NOW. Make sure of YOUR Sunday Advertiser!

UNCLAIMED LETTER.

Church Movies Play to Full House

Middleton, N. Y., April 11.—Christ Universalist Church here was packed to the doors for the inauguralis of the Rev. Thomas H. Saunders' "Church Movies."

The film version of Charles Dickens' "Dombey and Son," in six reels, was the attraction, and collections were taken at both showings to defray expenses.

"There would be no question of filling the churches today," Mr. Saunders said, "if the church had seen its opportunity when the 'movies' first came into popularity."

DEMOCRATS ARE DEEP IN DEBT

Hapgood Says Reorganization Has Become a Matter of Necessity

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, April 11.—The Democratic National Committee is in such financial difficulty that its reorganization has become a matter of necessity. A promissory note for a large amount, long overdue, is held by a friendly New York bank, but cannot be held much longer.

Norman Hapgood

A defeated party with a large hang-over campaign indebtedness is in a different position from a victorious party in the same predicament. Since Mr. Raskob was put definitely in charge of all minor patronage matters his office has been steadily flanked by a line of office-seekers somewhat less than a mile in length. The condition is expressed, if I may be pardoned the story that Justice Vandeventer, of the Supreme Court, wishing to see the Attorney General on a matter of business, was kept in the outer office an hour with a gang of office-hunters and then went away without being admitted. In these circumstances the business of the nation suffers, but campaign debts can be paid.

ARRANGEMENT FAILS.

The Democratic National Committee thought it had found a way to get out of trouble—but the way failed. When the war between the two elements broke out last winter one of the most prominent leaders of the Coz-White faction said to me:

"The Meddlers thought they had us. They thought we could not handle the indebtedness. They will find that it is already arranged for." But the arrangement blew up.

When the "progressive group," as they usually designated themselves, heard just what the arrangement was they used the parliamentary equivalent for "not on your life." The arrangement that the White group had made for the payment revived one of the most dramatic Democratic splits of recent years. The person who was to wipe out the Diddebtedness was Thomas F. Ryan. The arrangement with him had been made by two strong adherents of Oscar Underwood and supporters of him for the Presidency.

WILSON-HARVEY BREAK.

In 1912 Woodrow Wilson broke with George Harvey on this same rock. In 1920 events would have taken a turn that would have prevented Colonel Harvey's name from ever being mentioned for a public office had not been prudent enough to accept an insult in silence. He published, shortly after election, a letter that gave offense to all Catholics. Alan Ryan, son of Thomas F., thereupon applied terms to Harvey's Weekly that implied a grave disbelief on Ryan's part in the financial integrity of his elder in question.

Before publishing his comment Alan Ryan showed it to some of his friends. One of them said: "It is very mean, and damaging to Harvey, but it is extremely libelious. You must be sure of your facts."

"Don't you worry," Ryan replied. "Harvey will never peep. I know too much about him. He knows I know it."

What Ryan referred to, as certain to keep Harvey quiet, went far back of 1912. Some of the specifications precede the death of William S. Whitney.

If these were normal times politically the natural place for Alan Ryan to tell his story would be before the relations between Henry Cabot Lodge and Harvey make a separate story in themselves, and the Foreign Relations Committee is hardly likely to take the plunge.

NEW BATTLE ON BUNKER HILL

Spirited Attack on Luminary Foes Ends in Disaster for Patrolman

After several valiant attempts to capture Bunker Hill from the enemy, Patrolman John Stewart of the City Square station, Charlestown, and his army of fourteen-year-old boys were forced to retreat when the police officer became exhausted from the heavy "fire." He was assisted to a nearby doorway where his "comrades, in Hayes square, sent for the ambulance at the station house.

Reeling through the district at the foot of the famous monument, Patrolman Stewart managed to evade the ambulance for several minutes but was finally "captured" by brother officers. When examined for wounds by Dr. John Duff at the station he was found to be suffering from "hot fire within."

Captain Michael Goff immediately suspended "Major" Stewart and he was relieved from further command and weapons. Historians who have lived for many years in the vicinity of Warren's victory are today preparing another chapter on the valiant attempt of the youthful army led by one of the city's finest.

Women Voters Quit Party Politics

Members of the Margaret Brent Civic Guild, a state-wide organization of Catholic women voters, have unanimously resolved to sever all relations with party politics.

They will swing their aid to whatever party and whatever measures most appeal to them, as the result of their vote at their annual convention at the Hotel Buckminister.

The first resolution to receive their endorsement was one pledging the furtherance of legislation advantageous to former service men.

Rules of the Movie Play Title Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser have a Movie Play Title Test in a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given, for three two newspapers in their respective circulation districts, the largest percentage of correct answers to the picture to be published on each day, beginning in the Daily American and Sunday Advertiser.

All employes of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 40 pictures, representing the title of a Moving Picture Play, to be published each day in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first appearing in the Boston American.

Each contestant may enter contest which has been run, which is to be published in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser. The Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering.

Every participant of any or all members of his family may enter the contest and send in TITLE to each picture, and no participant may enter more than one award shall be given to any one person.

Each and every title must be neatly written or typed on one side of paper, clipped from the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or on a page of some book or publication published by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a copy of same, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the contestant written on the margin.

Each and every title must be "title" form, i. e., do not write titles like one sentence or a page of reading matter.

In case there are not complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the one who submitting the nearest correct solutions, based on the number of correct titles.

Ties for any of the awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and skill displayed in the solution submitted, and the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Those no circumstances should participants send in their titles by mail, but bring them in person, or they will be disqualified. No picture is printed will not be considered.

Each picture will be published in the Movie Test arrange them in numerical order and keep them for all together at any time. Time will not be a factor in making the awards. Each picture will be published in the Boston American and must be better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Play Title Headquarters, at least by 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass., or mail or in person within the specified time limit, which will be announced later.

All titles must be plainly written or typed and must be legibly addressed as follows: Movie Play Title Editor, Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 2250, or send each picture with the name and address of the sender legibly written on the margin of the paper.

Do not write on both sides of the paper. Do not write or printed matter, if mailed. It is however, necessary that the sender affix the proper amount of postal letter rates, as mail of this character is handled by the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser as third class matter. Do not send stamps or coins or bills to cover charges for postal delivery as we supply stamps.

There will be no title or answer book to be sold by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, and no one in the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser is authorized to sell any title book.

Participants who desire further information may address their inquiries to the Movie Play Title Editor.

Those who desire to have the Summer street, Boston, Mass., or mail or in person within the specified time limit, which will be announced later.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Play Title Headquarters, at least by 80 Summer street, Boston

The Fruity Laxative

McK&R

Resinol

Bringsasmileof relief as soon as it touches that itching rash or patch of eczema. Save yourself hours of torture by keeping a jar on hand. Cool, soothing, healing—and so nearly flesh color it hardly shows at all. Your druggist sells it. Ask for it.

To Absorb Freckles And Other Blemishes

Every spring numerous inquiries are made by girls seeking some reliable recipe for removing freckles. Very favorable reports have been received from men who have used ordinary mercolized wax during the freckling season. The wax seems to possess unusual properties which completely absorb the freckles, with no harmful effect whatever. The complexion improves wonderfully, becoming as soft as a rose petal, and as delicately tinted. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's, spread a thin layer of it over the entire face every night for a while, washing this off in the morning. For rough, spotty skin, sallowness, blackheads, pimples and all cutaneous blemishes, this treatment is superior to any other.

Sunlight also brings wrinkles to many sensitive skins that are much exposed to winds and changing temperatures. To a half pint witch hazel add an ounce of powdered saxolite, which quickly dissolves. Bathe the face in this; the effect on a wrinkled skin is truly remarkable.

Quickly Relieves Constipation

Don't let constipation poison your blood and curtail your energy. If your liver and bowels don't work properly take CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS today and your trouble will be relieved. For dizziness, lack of appetite, headache and blotchy skin try them. Purely vegetable. Small Pill—Small Dose—Small Price

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Mary Pickford and Frances Marion snapped between scenes while they're "on location."

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

THE Metro Studio in New York is a busy place now. Although the players of that company are all working on the West coast, the Metro people have rented the huge building opposite Central Park to wandering tribes from other companies.

Marion Davies' sets for "Enchantment" are taking up pretty much the entire place at the International Studio. Frances Marion's company making "Just Around the Corner," Lionel Barrymore's making "Sonny," Douglas Hill," and Frank Borzage's, making "Better Pay" with Matt Moore and Seena Owen, are working outside.

Most of them were off on location when we went over to watch them at work the other day. Frances Marion, however, was busy putting the finishing touches on her next feature, "Just Around the Corner." She has just come East after finishing "The Love Light" with Mary Pickford.

WILL MARY GROW UP?

"You know," she explained, "Mary and I have worked together for years. First I simply wrote her stories, then I worked up the continuity and later I became her director. She's one of the most wonderful girls I have ever known, and as for her acting ability—well, she hasn't begun to win the fame she will in the future."

Here we want to quote what Olga Printzlau said in regard to Miss Pickford: "Just before I left Hollywood," she told us, "Cecil DeMille said that Mary Pickford would score her greatest success on the day that she plays an emotional role—a flapperick type of part."

We repeated this to Miss Marion and she was enthusiastic. "Mary is ready to play such a part today," she said. "She has wanted to 'grow up' for years, but the public won't let her. The first time she had an opportunity for this, but what happened? The picture was a financial loss. She tried it again in a lesser degree in 'Suds,' and the public howled with wrath.

BACK IN "KID" PARTS.

"When we started work on 'The Love Light,' one of my own stories, she was delighted with the part it gave her. After we had made three-quarters of the pictures, notices came in from the exhibitors all over the country begging her to play a 'kid' part again, that the fans wouldn't support her in older roles. We had to do nearly the entire picture over in order to make changes, but even then they found her too old to suit them. She was utterly discouraged.

"For the present she has gone back to younger stories, but some day, I'm certain we'll see her as an emotional actress."

Here the electricians finished adjusting the lights and Miss Marion went off to direct. "Just Around the Corner," written as well as directed by Miss Marion, tells a human story of the troubles of a young girl who tries to help out her family's finances: It is an everyday, easy-to-understand tale of those who are always turning the place into an athletic arena." Miss Marion laughed. First they tried standing broad jumps with half the cast grouped around as referees. Then they tried "stunt" jumps.

"Look!" exclaimed Sargent—they all call him Jimmy around the studio—and he jumped into the air, making two complete turns before he landed. That started something. Each man went off into a corner for a little secret practice before he gave a public demonstration of his cleverness. Then they all met again and compared jumps.

Meanwhile Miss Marion was telling us of her work. "It's not as convenient to direct your own stories as people seem to think. After I've worked out the entire thing in my mind moves along set lines in regard to the plot. In directing I sometimes can't get the exact idea I want, and I am simply up against a stone wall. Whereas, if a person who is absolutely fresh regarding the story comes in, why, he can get a clear picture of what I want to get over. It's a case of being too close to the subject to get a good perspective. On the other hand, of course, I wrote the story and I know the theme that was in mind when I started it. Therefore, in some ways, it's easier for me to carry it out."

WITH SWEDEN'S MARY PICKFORD.

Little Sigrid Holmquist, known as "the Swedish Mary Pickford," came up to get instructions regarding her costume for the next day's work. She plays the leading role in "Just Around the Corner."

"Yes," this is my first visit to America," she told us in her soft broken English. "I have been here three months now. They tell me I look like Mary Pickford. Is it so, do you think?"

We looked at her critically. "Yes, and no," decided. The eyes, although they are blue and Miss Pickford's are hazel, have the same expression. They are set wide apart and look squarely at one when she speaks, but her mouth and jaw are not quite as full as "our Mary's." Her hair, too, is quite light. She smiled. "I am glad, for your Mary is very beautiful."

MAKING A DAY OF IT.

Work was over for the day, and everyone prepared to go home. Since 9 o'clock that morning Miss Marion had been on the set working hard. While the players had rests during the scenes in which they didn't figure, she was at work all the time directing each set of players as they acted. Yet she was as fresh and as, well, "peppy," as if she hadn't done a thing all day. And that wasn't all.

"Back on the set at 8 o'clock tonight," she called to a few of the players. "We're going to finish up some of the scenes immediately. That means I'll be here until late again, but never mind." And she smiled gleefully. "There's the greatest satisfaction in actually taking the last scene of a picture. I expect we'll be through in two or three days."

MORIZE INSISTS GERMANS PAY

French Captain Flays "Campaign of Lies" to Arouse U. S. Sympathy

"Germany can and must be made to pay the indemnity provided for under the Peace Treaty."

"Although the German government is nearing bankruptcy, her banks are paying dividends of 18 per cent., the Krupp works announced a profit for the last year of 79,000,000 marks, and the Bayer works of 18 per cent."

"The deliberate campaign of lies conducted in this country and elsewhere, which has started a wave of sympathy for poor Germany—suffering, starving, weeping under the brutal pressure of the Allies, especially France—will not prevent that payment."

These are some of the statements made in the course of an address by Captain Andre Morize, speaking in Trinity Church, Newton Centre, on "What France Asks and Why."

"The question is brutally clear," said the speaker. "The treaty is a guarantee of the future of France and in their guarantee the clauses about reparation are the basis of her future existence.

"For two years there has been waged a campaign of lies regarding this treaty. Insinuations and falsehoods have been multiplied. The odious reservation relative to the so-called 'black horror' in the Rhine are repeated and repeated, despite the fact that more than six months ago official French, American and even German denials have shown to the world there is not a black soldier on the Rhine.

"France repudiates these lies. She has no concern with this bogus compassion for 'martyred Germany.' She thirsts not for vengeance, but for domination. She asks justice and the right to live. She can not live unless these reparations are paid. That is all.

"We all know to what point her economic ruin was carried during the war: 319,000 houses, 29,000 factories, 3,500 townships wiped out.

"To these must be added the loss of 1,300,000 of her sons.

FOES OF IRISH RELIEF FLAYED

Providence Orators Deplore Attacks Upon Fund for Women and Children

Providence, R. I., April 11.—Ex-Governor Beeckman urged support of the Irish relief drive and other speakers denounced propaganda aimed against it at a game meeting in Infantry Hall last evening.

More than 2,000 attended and warmly greeted the speakers, including Michael F. Dooley, chairman of the Rhode Island committee; Rt. Rev. William J. Hickey, coadjutor bishop of the Providence diocese; Morgan J. O'Brien of New York, chairman of the national executive committee; Martin Conboy of New York, John J. Fitzgerald, former Mayor of Pawtucket, and Hon. George F. O'Shaughnessey, former representative.

United States Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, who was to have been the principal speaker, failed to appear.

During the meeting pledge cards were circulated, and a large sum was realized.

Mr. Fitzgerald urged additional subscriptions from men who have already subscribed and it was announced that $3,322 was realized in this manner. Mr. Fitzgerald also announced that since the drive opened $166,000 has been subscribed in Rhode Island exclusive of Pawtucket and Newport, whose totals have not yet been tabulated.

THANKS RED CROSS.

Mr. Dooley paid tribute to the Red Cross for its contribution and declared that as the Red Cross has not failed Ireland, the Irish will never fail the Red Cross.

Governor Beeckman, who appeared on a public platform for the first time since his term of office expired, last January, congratulated the committee upon its successful campaign.

"This drive," he said, "is for a humanitarian purpose. Nothing religious or political enters into it. There has never been a case of suffering that the United States did not try to eliminate. She has always been ready and willing and what world is there now if we were not willing to step out of our shell and do our best for suffering Ireland."

MUST AID OR SHARE MISERY.

"When the drive opened," said Bishop Hickey, "I said that if the Red Cross was to help the White Cross would. The Red Cross has and I knew it would. The drive has brought out a most splendid and true example of Americanism."

Judge O'Brien reviewed the history of the committee that launched the drive, and thanked all who are taking part in it.

ENDICOTT PROVIDES ORCHESTRA FUNDS

In memory of his father, Henry B. Endicott, of the board of trustees of the New England Conservatory of Music, Samuel Endicott, of the family, has created an Endicott Fund, of $5,000, the income from which is to serve as a contingent fund for the conservatory orchestra.

Conservatory classes were resumed this morning following the Easter vacation. Events of the week included annual meeting of Alpha Chapter, tomorrow evening; senior carnival, recital hall, Thursday evening; dramatical recital, Friday afternoon and dance of the Kappa Gamma Psi fraternity on Friday evening.

X-Ray Probe Started By Scientists' Fate

London, April 11.—London scientists have undertaken a campaign to protect doctors from the X-ray, which has been proven fatal if used constantly as in the recent deaths of Dr. Ironside Bruce of Charing Cross and Dr. Adolphe Leray of Paris, two of the most eminent radiologists in the world.

A committee of specialists will try to discover what changes the X-ray produces in the blood and tissues, whether the rays can be controlled and whether there is any substance that will protect operators of X-ray apparatus.

G. O. P. ASSUMES FULL CONTROL

New Congress Formally Begins Functions, With Many Changes Apparent

Washington, April 11.—For the first time in eight years the Republicans come into full possession of the executive and legislative branches of the government today when Congress convened in the special session summoned by President Harding.

With a majority of 22 in the Senate and 168 in the House, the Republicans will be in a position to run the government as they please until the next congressional elections two years hence.

There are among the Republicans some who look upon these big majorities, especially the one in the House with apprehension, believing that it may prove a handicap rather than a help in handling legislation where party lines are obliterated.

Besides, the situation leaves no question as to where the responsibility for the administration of the government will lie in the next four years. It is not that the Republicans are afraid of undertaking it, but should mistakes occur there will be no one with whom to divide them, which presents a serious consideration from a political standpoint.

In both houses many new faces were seen and many old ones missed when they were called to order. In the Senate such men as Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, Senator Smith of Arizona, Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, Senator Thomas of Colorado, Senator Oroona of North Dakota and Senator Gore of Oklahoma were absent. In their places younger men and men of another political faith rose when the roll was called.

SCORE AWAIT DEATH IN SING SING PRISON

Ossining, N. Y., April 11.—Twenty prisoners are today waiting death in the electric chair in the death house at Sing Sing, three times the number three months ago.

PLOT TO BLOW UP WARSHIP FAILS

$125,000 Bribe Offered for Sinking of Mexican Gunboat at New Orleans

Mexico City, April 11.—The discovery and frustration of a plot to blow up the Mexican gunboat Zaragoza while she was in harbor at New Orleans recently, was detailed today by the war department.

Juan Merlin, former Carranza general, according to the war department statement, offered $125,000 to Lieutenant Idaho Rosado to destroy the vessel, but the officer refused. Instead Lieutenant Homes reported the affair to the Mexican Consul at New Orleans.

It is thought here that the plotters hoped that international difficulties would develop following the consummation of the plot.

Merlin will be tried for treason if he ever returned to Mexico, the Secretary of War declared.

MAN OF 77 GOT RID OF RHEUMATISM

Surprised How Quickly Weldona Helped Him

"Following my discharge from the navy at the end of the Civil War, I began to suffer from rheumatism," said Mr. J. D. Cooley, who lives at 1405 Eastern Ave., Malden, Mass. "At times it has been necessary for me to use two canes. My whole system seemed to be filled with rheumatism, every bone and joint was sore and stiff. I obtained Weldona and continued the treatment until every ache and pain disappeared. Weldona is truly wonderful."

BEVERLY RAID NETS WINE AND WHISKEY

The home of Joseph Izzo, 242 Rantoul street, Beverly, was raided by the police, and a large amount of wine was confiscated. The spoil consisted of two barrels and two gallon jugs of wine, two quarts of whiskey, a large number of gallon cans, funnels, and glasses. Izzo was held in $100 on a charge of maintaining a liquor nuisance.

It is expected that more than 1,000 of Colonel Dunn's friends will be present.

A MOTHER'S TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

West Buxton, (Me.)—To read of Mrs. Arthur Campbell's experience is harrowing. Imagine her feeling—she writes: "I am a mother of five children. My little girl two years old was so sick with fever she lay just as if she were dead for two weeks. I started giving her Dr. True's Elixir and she began to gain at once. Now I would not be without it. I feel very grateful to you."

No doubt this child had some stomach trouble due to worms. Scores of children have worms and their mothers don't know the trouble.

Symptoms of worms: Deranged stomach swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly, with pain about the navel, pale face, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids itching of the nose and rectum, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

Dr. True's Elixir has been faithful in its duties as a family Laxative and Worm Expeller since 1871.—Advertisement.

O'CALLAGHAN MUST LEAVE

But Cork Mayor Will Be Given "Reasonable Time," Davis Announces

By International News Service.

Washington, April 11.—Secretary of Labor Davis today ruled that Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, is an able seaman and must reship from this country.

Secretary Davis issued a statement announcing his ruling that O'Callaghan must reship foreign, but stated that he would be given a reasonable time to do so. The Secretary of State has ruled that O'Callaghan's plea that he is a political refugee cannot be sustained, Secretary Davis announced, and, therefore, the former ruling of Secretary Wilson that O'Callaghan is an alien seaman must be enforced.

It is the practice to allow alien seamen ninety days in which to reship, and Secretary Davis stated that he expected O'Callaghan to observe this rule, the time beginning to run from the time of the decision of the Secretary of State that O'Callaghan is not a political refugee. It is understood that this decision was handed down last week.

ROXBURY MAN WEDS MARLBORO GIRL

Mrs. R. J. Connolly

Marlboro, April 11.—Miss Helen U. Giblin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh C. Giblin of No. 12 Ringold street, this city, and Ray J. Connolly of Roxbury were married at the rectory of the Immaculate Conception Church here by Rev. Fr. T. B. Lowney, the rector.

They were attended by Miss Sarah D. Giblin, a sister of the bride and Timothy A. Connolly, a brother of the groom. Only the immediate families attended the ceremony.

Later a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the young couple received the congratulations of a host of friends from Boston, New York and other cities before beginning their wedding journey to Atlantic City.

Mr. Connolly is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy L. Connolly of Roxbury. His father is a former president of the Boston City Council.

TO FRAME FORESTRY POLICY FOR NATION

Washington, April 11.—Appointment of a committee to study the forestry situation with the view to suggesting a policy was announced today by Joseph H. Defrees, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Timber, owners, lumber users, foresters and the public are represented, the members of which are drawn from many parts of the United States. The first meeting of the committee will be held at Atlantic City April 27 to 29. The committee will outline its program for taking up the forestry question. One of the committee is Harvey N. Shephard, chairman State Forest Commission, Boston.

HARDING WILL DOOM TREATY

First Message to Congress to Offer New Solution of Peace Problem

Washington, April 11.—President Harding, in his first message to Congress, to be delivered at noon tomorrow, will dispose for all time the question of whether this administration will stand for ratification of the Versailles treaty under any conditions, and it may definitely be assumed that he will once more take his position against ratification.

That message, already drafted, will forever end the speculation regarding the future international deliberations, according to those close to the President. By their view of it the President is planning to remove that treaty from all future consideration and to pave the way for a brand new settlement of the world's affairs.

"While the President will back up the Hughes sentiment for Germany's being held to a strict accountability for the war which involves some amendments in the Knox separate peace resolution, he will state the position of the United States in such a way as to make mandatory an absolutely new deal in the settlement of all war questions," was the statement made by one of his closest advisers.

On revenue, tariff and the railroad situation, affecting as it does the prosperity of the nation, the President is expected to devote time equivalent to that dedicated to international problems. He has promised that in the consideration of all these problems he is not going to forget the plight of the service man. In the main, the message is expected to incorporate the bulk of the Dawes committee report on ways and means of meeting the problems growing out of soldier welfare.

WOMAN HELD IN BOND THEFT

Harriet Pendleton Hunt Is Charged With $10,000 Swindle in New York

New York, April 11.—Harriet Pendleton Hunt, described as a writer and a member of a prominent family of Cincinnati, O., was placed under arrest here charged with obtaining $10,000 in Victory Bonds from the brokerage firm of W. E. Hutton & Co. on false representations.

Nine bonds of $1,000 each and $752 in cash were recovered.

Mrs. Hunt was taken into custody at No. 121 West 44th street, an apartment house, after the police had trailed her from hotel to hotel. She was charged with grand larceny.

Mrs. Hunt is charged with having given the brokerage firm a check for $10,000 in return for which she received the bonds. The check was drawn on a Cincinnati bank and was returned marked "no funds."

Mrs. Hunt is thirty-five years old. Her purpose in securing the money, she later explained, was that she wished to join her divorced husband, Philip Hunt, whom she learned was desperately ill in Paris.

At the police station Mrs. Hunt said that one of her uncles had been mayor of Cincinnati and that another uncle was Francis K. Pendleton, who resigned from the New York Supreme Court bench last year.

Mrs. Hunt is a daughter of Elliot Pendleton, Jr., a prominent attorney and large realty magnate of Cincinnati. His uncle, George Pendleton, was nationally known as a United States senator.

Record Number of Long-Lived Couples

Canterbury, Ct., April 11.—Evidence that marriage is an aid to long life, is furnished by a number of couples in this vicinity, and residents point with pride to their records for matrimonial felicity.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Frink of Canterbury celebrated the fifty-ninth anniversary of their marriage on Saturday. They are about seventy-nine years old and enjoy good health. Colonel and Mrs. Isaac Sanderson of Willimantic have been married sixty-one years. Over in Plainfield Mr. and Mrs. Albert Haskell have been united in the bonds of matrimony fifty-three years.

Just a little farther along on Sterling Hill, "Uncle Robert" Sherman and wife celebrated their fifty-first anniversary a short time ago, and up at Central Village, three miles away, James B. Pellett and wife, and W. S. Simmons and wife have been married fifty-eight years and a few days.

A peculiar thing about the last two is that both men and Haskell are three of the only six members left of Kilborn Post, G. A. R. There are a score or more couples within a radius of ten miles approaching golden wedding anniversaries.

ALEXANDER M. SULLIVAN DESCRIBES IRELAND

Alexander M. Sullivan, who returned recently from Ireland, delivered an interesting talk on conditions there to a gathering of members of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic at the Catholic Club of Dorchester. Fifty-eight new members were enrolled. Jeremiah F. Driscoll, president of the Central Labor Union, also spoke. John J. Meade, temporary president, presided.

PRINT STRIKE LAID TO SHOPS

Statement Accusing Owners Denied by Typothetae Official

The local and national typothetae were charged with precipitating the printers' strike in a statement issued by President Sylvester McBride of Typographical Union No. 13, and Secretary Daniel J. McDonald of the Allied Printing Trades Council. They make the claim that the strike was originally scheduled for Chicago.

Robert Seaver, chairman of the publicity committee of the Typothetae issued a denial of the charges. He said that it had been friendly with small shops and claimed that the 44-hour week was the real issue of the strike.

He also stated that the wage cut put into effect by the Boston Typothetae was the same scale as last ratified by the union, only the voluntary increase granted last September being cut.

CRAM AND POUND TO LECTURE AT DARTMOUTH

Hanover, N. H., April 11.—Ralph Cram, architect and authority on social problems, and Roscoe C. Pound, dean of the Harvard Law School, will open the Dartmouth alumni lectureships founded on the gift of $100,000 by Henry L. Moore of Minneapolis, a member of the board of trustees. Each will deliver a series of eight addresses during the week immediately following commencement, June 21.

LAWRENCE RAISES $3,000 TO AID SUFFERING JEWS

Lawrence, April 11.—The Jewish societies of Lawrence, which together have conducted a bazaar and drive for funds for suffering Jewish people in the European countries, has closed. It was announced by Chairman Jacob Reed of the committee that over $3,000 in cash has been raised through the bazaar. The women have gathered about $2,000 worth of clothing which will be forwarded with the money. A special vote of thanks was accorded the Lawrence merchants who donated most of the clothing to the cause.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

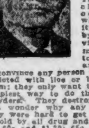
MISCELLANEOUS

LICE AND BEDBUGS



A gentleman recently described the difference between a louse and a bedbug by saying one was a "body guard," while the other was a "home guard." There is more difference than size between these two pests. They have several characteristics in common, one of which is their ability to spread disease by biting infected victims and transmitting the germs to others. No long argument is needed to convince any person who ever has been afflicted with lice or bedbugs to destroy them; they only want to know how. The simplest way to do this is use Martin's Powders. They destroy them so quickly you wonder why any one ever thought they were hard to get rid of.

Sold by all drug and department stores for 60c and $1.20; 65c and $1.30 by mail. Eleven different powders. Name kind when ordering. All registered in Maine.

PROPOSALS

CITY OF BOSTON.

SCHOOLHOUSE DEPARTMENT.

TO PLUMBING CONTRACTORS.

The Schoolhouse Commissioners of the City of Boston invite sealed proposals to install and complete the plumbing system in the Public Latin School, Avenue Louis Pasteur, Boston, Mass., and giving bond of a surety company approved by the Commissioners in the sum of 40 per cent. of the entire contract price. Only proposals obtained at the office of the Commissioners, Room 1,009, City Hall Annex, signed by the bidder and left before 12 o'clock m. of Friday, April 22, 1921, at said office with a certified check for $2,500, payable to the City if the proposal is not carried out, will then and there be publicly opened and read. The bid must be made in duplicate, the one with the check to be submitted as indicated above and the other to be deposited with the City Auditor, City Hall, previous to the time named for opening bids. The Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all proposals. A deposit of $15, either certified check or cash, will be required for a complete set of plans and specifications, said sum to be refunded on return of drawings and specifications. Mutilation of plans or specifications will be deemed sufficient cause for the forfeiture of the said deposit.

RALPH HARRINGTON DOANE,
Commissioners.

REPORT 14 DIE IN OHIO RIVER

Louisville, Kentucky, Gets Telephone Advice of Sinking of Steamship

Louisville, Ky., April 11.—Fourteen persons were drowned in the sinking of a steamer named Three States in the Ohio River, according to unconfirmed reports reaching here by telephone early today.

No details are available.

House Built in 1837 Destroyed

Sandwich, April 11.—Fire destroyed the Tupper house, oldest of Cape Cod dwellings, it was built in 1637 and, next to the Fairbanks house in Dedham, was the oldest colonial house in the State. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

TREFRY SHOOTS HIMSELF

Former Tax Commissioner, Despondent Over Loss of Position, Dying

the past twenty years was Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation.

One of the last acts Vice-President Coolidge did on leaving the State House was to appoint his secretary, Henry F. Long, in Trefry's place as tax commissioner.

REMOVAL A SURPRISE.

The removal of Trefry came as a big surprise and he did not hesitate to express his resentment at being ousted. The age limit for persons to hold the position of tax commissioner is seventy years. Trefry's seventieth birthday is in May, 1922.

"I have been fired," was Trefry's statement on being supplanted by Long. "Notice that my position had been given to another man came as a complete surprise to me, and I feel that I have been treated very shabbily."

One of the foremost experts on taxation, Trefry had seen the revenue of Massachusetts increase from $4,000,000 a year to $13,000,000. He framed many of the taxation laws of today, and his advice was sought by other States.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

BAYER

Warning! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for 21 years and proved safe by millions. Take Aspirin only as told in the Bayer package for Colds, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Earache, Toothache, Lumbago and for Pain. Handy tin boxes of twelve Bayer Tablets of Aspirin cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

LOCAL BREVITIES

A private funeral was held yesterday for the twin boys of former Mayor and Mrs. James M. Curley of Jamaicaway, who died a day after they were born. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery.

DRIVE AWAY HEADACHE

Rub Musterole on Forehead and Temples

A headache remedy without the dangers of "headache medicine." Relieves headache and that miserable feeling from colds or congestion. And it acts at once! Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister. Used only externally, and in no way can it affect stomach and heart, as some internal medicines do.

Excellent for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, all pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

EX-KAISERIN IS DEAD AT DOORN

Expected That Her Body Will Be Sent to Historic Mausoleum at Potsdam

For, however, violently divided may be the feelings about Wilhelm, the woman who shared his joys and sorrows for forty years and stuck to him when all the world showered hatred and abuse upon his head, was believed and revered by her former subjects.

Berlin was in deep mourning a few hours after the news from Doorn had reached here. Every now and again, as is the German custom, the church bells toll solemnly. Sad eyed newsboys are holding out black bordered extra sheets bearing a brief dispatch under the gigantic headline: "Die Kaiserin ist Tot."

Many of them bear the favorite pleasure of the dead empress surrounded by her seven children and several grand children.

An imposing funeral ceremony is being prepared at Potsdam, where the body of the empress is expected Wednesday. A special company of officers of the former Imperial Guard is organizing to serve as an escort of honor for the coffin from the station to the Mausoleum.

It is understood that neither the ex-Kaiser nor the former Crown Prince will come to Germany for the funeral.

Court Pastor von Dryander will go to Doorn tonight. He will officiate at the services at Doorn today.

The body will be interred in the mausoleum near the Neues Palais at Potsdam.

Students of Berlin University and hundreds of Royalists in all walks of life are reported to be planning to march to Potsdam for the burial to make a monarchistic demonstration.

Ex-Kaiserin's Life Was Saddened by Sons

The former Kaiserin was born October 22, 1858, the daughter of Duke Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein. Her first meeting with the man who was later to be Kaiser took place under romantic circumstances when both were very young. Wilhelm being only twenty years old.

Invited to be the guest of Duke Frederick, he came upon a young girl in a Summer house on the royal grounds and quickly kissed her, without disturbing her. Later he found her to be the daughter of his host, and they were eventually married on February 27, 1881. Seven years later Wilhelm succeeded to the throne of the Hohenzollerns.

Since the revolution in that country and the repatriation of the former Kaiser sympathy has been general in Germany for the unfortunate woman. A born soldier and "Hausfrau," she sought happiness in family life, and mingled very little with the political life of the imperial court.

But happiness has been an elusive goal with the Empress. Long before the war came, to rack her with terrors and eventually drive her and hers from their royal home, her life was saddened and embittered by the dissipations of her sons and other domestic troubles.

She was the living emblem of the Kaiser's ideal for womanhood, whose proper sphere he summed up in three words: "Church, cooking, children."

PROBE FIRE IN DORCHESTER

$10,000 Blaze in Towel Plant Started in Room Heaped High With Paper

Police today began an investigation of the fire which caused $10,000 damage, and quieted the plant of G. A. King & Co., makers of paper towels, No. 1237 Dorchester avenue, near E street.

Chief Bennett found that the fire started in a small oil room, which was heaped high with paper. Firemen could find no cause for the blaze, and notified the fire marshal and the police.

William J. Walker, of Engine 42, was slightly cut on the right hand by falling glass. He was treated by a physician declining to go to a hospital. A citizen discovered the flames while lying in an alarm. By the time the firemen arrived the blaze had spread through the entire structure, and Chief Bennett ordered a second alarm.

Traffic on street cars was delayed an hour by the fire, passengers being held at Andrew square.

TRADE BETWEEN U. S. AND MEXICO GROWING

Mexico City, April 11.—Trade between the United States and Mexico during 1921 should amount to $450,000,000, as against $350,000,000 in 1920, according to an estimate given out by W. T. Saunders, secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce. He recently returned from a tour of the United States. Mr. Saunders says Mexico needs capital particularly to develop the sugar industry and for irrigation works.

CANADIAN PLANES TO PATROL N. E. BORDER

Newport, Vt., April 11.—Canadian authorities are said to be planning an airplane patrol of the New England border, as a result of charges that more than $5,000,000 worth of liquor finds its way from Canada to the United States monthly.

Colored Stitches Surgical Fad

London, April 11.—Pink surgical stitches are the vogue now. Before Mrs. Andre Charlot, wife of the impresario and playwright was operated upon the other day, the surgeon said:

"What kind of stitches would you like, pink, blue or purple?"

"Pink would suit my complexion best," Mrs. Charlot replied.

So pink they were.

LAWRENCE MURDER DEFENDANT TESTIFIES

Lawrence, April 11.—Sarino Corsaro, on trial here for the killing of Micheal Lanzonda in a pool room row over a year ago, took the stand today in his own behalf. Today opened the seventh day of the trial. The case will go to the jury late tomorrow afternoon or Wednesday morning. Several more corroborative witnesses were heard this morning regarding the row in the pool room which preceded the shooting. Counsel for Corsaro is seeking to establish self-defense as a motive for the shooting.

All Mothers Will Find Use For This Laxative

Give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a constipated child and note its quick recovery.

IN a growing family the subject of thought with the parents is how to keep the children healthy and happy, and what to do when they become ill. Most illnesses of childhood are the symptoms of constipation, such as headaches, coated tongues, flatulence, dizziness, loss of appetite and sleep, biliousness, etc.

You can surely feel safe in doing what tens of thousands of others do with good results, so give, according to the age of the child, a small quantity of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Eight million bottles were bought last year at drug stores. It is America's favorite family remedy for constipation, indigestion and similar ills, and is especially suitable for children, women and old folks as it is so mild and gentle in action.

There is no secret about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant tasting aromatics. Druggists have sold it for thirty years, and a sixty cent bottle will last for months. Experienced mothers are never without it in the house.

TRY IT FREE

Send me your name and address and I will send you a free trial bottle of my Syrup Pepsin. Address me Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 977 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois. Everybody now and then needs a laxative, and it is well to know the best. Write me today.

The New Laws

on teeth cleaning—five of them

The old ways of teeth cleaning have proved inadequate. Nearly everybody knows that. Millions find that well-brushed teeth discolor and decay.

Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing. Some have grown alarming in extent. Very few escape them.

So dental science, after diligent research, has set down some new laws. Millions now obey them, largely by dental advice. This is to urge a ten-day test, so you may know what these new factors mean.

1—Combat the film

The first new law is, Combat the film. You can feel it now—a viscous film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

Old methods do not effectively combat it. Much of the film is left. Then night and day it may do ceaseless damage. Most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

It is film-coats that discolor, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles, local and internal.

Two effective methods

Science has now found two effective film combatants. High authorities have amply proved them. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

These methods are embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Every application fights the film. It also keeps teeth so highly polished that film less easily adheres. That is another law.

Other essentials

Science also finds that modern diet—rich in starch and low in fruit acids—calls for new requirements. Pepsodent has been designed to meet them.

It stimulates the salivary flow—Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise cling and form acid.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for the acids which cause tooth decay.

A tooth paste should twice daily serve to multiply these tooth-protecting forces. And Pepsodent complies with these new laws.

Millions now comply

Millions of people are now using Pepsodent. At least twice daily they get these five effects. It will mean, in good opinion, a new dental era.

The results are seen in every circle—soon in glistening teeth.

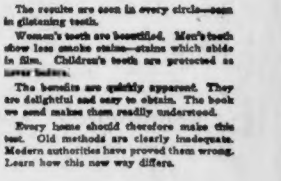
Women's teeth are beautified. Men's teeth show less smoke stains—stains which abide in film. Children's teeth are protected as never before.

The benefits are quickly apparent. They are delightful and easy to obtain. The book we send makes them readily understood.

Every home should therefore make this test. Old methods are clearly inadequate. Modern authorities have proved them wrong. Learn how this new way differs.

Every-Day Essentials

1—Remove the film.
2—Polish teeth highly.
3—Increase the saliva.
4—Multiply its starch digestant.
5—Multiply its alkalinity.



Watch the changes

Mail the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects.

Judge by what you see and feel. Read the reasons in the book we send. Then decide for yourself between the old ways and the new.

Act today, for every hour these enemies may be damaging your teeth. Cut out the coupon now.

Stocks Rule Higher; Call Money Rate Is 7%

PRICES STEADY FOR BOSTON

Local Market Shows Strength at Start and During Morning; Curb Is Dull

Prices were up at the opening of the Boston market, gains exceeding losses two to one at the start, and soon afterwards, but the advance was confined to fractions with the exception of Calumet and Hecla. That issue gained a point. Coppers ruled higher when they showed any change. But Calumet and Arizona went down a point. United Shoe was a morning feature, receipts more than a point above the rest. American Sugar common dropped 3½ on its first sale in new full days. Railroads issues were mixed as to movement. New England rails were dormant. Boston & Maine common, the A issue of that road, made trifling gains.

Among stocks to make fractional gains were American Woolen preferred, Massachusetts Gas, Ventura, National Leather, Mohawk, Old Dominion, North Butte, General Electric, Gardner and United Fruit. Among stocks to recede a little were Lovell Theatre, Walworth, Swift & Co. and Mexican Investment. In the second the market was steady and prices at about the best level.

CURB MARKET STRONG.

The Curb market had a rather strong start, most of the leaders on this exchange opening with small gains. Strength was retained during the morning, but trading remained of small volume. Among issues to advance at once were Gold Hill, Crystal, Eureka Empire Food, Mutual, Texana and Verde Mines. Among those to recede at the start were Alpha, Arizona Silver, Daddy and South American Gold. Active stocks were Crystal, Eureka and United Verde Extension.

At the end of an hour Crystal was up 1 cent at 29 cents, Eureka 3 cents at 93 cents, Mutual 5 cents at 30 cents and United Verde Extension 1 at 24½. Among losses were Alpha 5 cents at 51 cents and Ragged 1 cent at 18 cents. Arizona Silver had recovered its loss and Imperial and Verde Mines had lost gains.

Sumatra Dividend Doubts

American Sumatra Tobacco common was under selling pressure last week because of doubts as to what action its directorate would take on the dividend at the meeting tomorrow. Its rate is now 2% per cent. paid quarterly and bears claimed that it might be cut to 2 per cent. or 1½ per cent. But as earnings justify the preferred dividends but before Federal taxes for the first six months of the current fiscal year were equal to 10 per cent. per annum for common there is strong hope that the rate will be maintained.

Boston Financial Notes

After payment of 1920 dividends the books of the Insurtion Consolidated Copper Company showed a deficit of $1,842,800 against a deficit of $2,900,178 for 1919. The surplus after depletion and Federal taxes ($2,394,- equal to $1.94 a share (1920 par) on $23,- 000,000 outstanding stock, is $1,051,378 against $4,194,978 or $8.39 in 1919.

Boston & Albany railroad trading during the week in New Haven Rights amounted to 1,- according to a local financial publication.

Calumet & Hecla Consolidated last week 1,000,000 pounds of 6,800-pound cakes to Hamburg, Germany, the largest single lot for Central Europe filled by this company for several months. Its exports last week also comprised 700,000 pounds white domestic shipments to Scandinavian countries.

Goodrich Rubber Co. is now producing 1,000 tires a day, although the tire industry as a whole is not operating at more than 50 per cent. of capacity, to the Winter this corresponding to a rate of 1,500 tires per a day.

The average price per ton paid by the Boston Elevated for coal this year was $7.- against $6.80 in 1919, when 1,250,000 tons were burned that year against 907,437 in 1920.

The Calumet & Hecla electrolytic plant resumed this morning operations on refinery from the smelter, which is still in commission.

Arlington Mass. has sold to Clifton & Co., at 6.04 per cent. discount a temporary loan of $400,000 due April 15, 1921, and to Newton & Co. at 6.08 per cent. discount a temporary loan of $100,000 due April 15, 1921.

Profits & Reserves for last year per ton of product were $187.826, 6 cents per share, after depreciation and depletion. In 1919 the company earned profits of $564,386, or $2.35 per share; in 1918 $628,348 or $2.18 per share, and in 1917 it earned $2,450,000 or $8.64 per share.

Chicago Grain Opening

Chicago, April 11.—Wheat opened unchanged to ½c higher. Corn started ½c off and oats were unchanged to ¼c better. Provisions were unchanged to 10c higher. Opening prices were: Wheat—May 1.51½, July 1.51¾. Corn—May 80¾ to 80½, July 80 to 80½. Oats—May 37¾ to 37¾, July 30¼ to 30¾. Pork—May 21.50. Lard—May 11.60. Ribs—May 9.70.

Dividend Declarations

Ingersoll Rand Co. declared quarterly $2.50 common dividend, payable April 30 to stock of record April 15.

Northern Illinois Utilities Co. declared quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on preferred, payable May 2 to stock of record April 16.

Semmes Tobacco declared quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent. on common and preferred, payable May 1 to holders of record April 16.

Boston's Port Business

During March steamships entering Boston harbor totaled 110, the largest number of any month since August, and out of the number forty-two were under American registry which is the largest number for any foreign ports, against fifty-nine in February, fifty-eight in January and sixty in December. Tonnage handled in the port during March totaled 462,648 tons, the largest total for any month in several years.

Hides Sell Higher

Chicago reports that 15,000 heavy branded hides sold in that market late last week half a cent a pound higher than at the last previous sale.

MOTORS AMONG THE STRONGEST

Leathers Also Made Gains; Coppers Steady, Rails Weak and Oils Up

Financial Editor.
By W. H. ROSS.

Stocks ruled strong in New York at noon, although the list had some weak spots. Motors showed gains and leathers were among the strongest, while coppers were steady and oils up. Rails and several specialties were off. American Linseed Oil was prominent in the second hour, receding more than three points to a low for the year. Pennsylvania sold at a low point since listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The market was quiet, first hour transactions aggregating 14,000 shares. Call money opened at 7 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were higher, demand sterling advancing to $3.83.

MORE CHEERFUL NEWS.

News from England regarding the strike situation was more cheerful, and this in addition to the continued improvement in the reserve ratio of the Federal system caused stocks to go up from fractions to about a point when the exchange began business. The advance was brief and followed by a slow reaction, in which gains were wiped out in a number of instances. The one hour was irregular as to changes within a few minutes, but rallied later, and before the end of the hour prices were above the opening level. There was no striking feature. Traders were as cautious about commitments as at the end of the week. They are waiting for March 31 to be passed, which will determine whether the labor difficulty is to end in a peaceful settlement or a great struggle. Oils were leaders in the early decline and motors, which remained steady, were prominent in the recovery. Steels were quiet but improved. Rails were heavy on the whole and coppers had a heavy tone. Central Leather, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and American Woolen were among strongest issues. Northern Pacific was the weakest rail. Studebaker made the largest gain among motors and General Asphalt was the strongest specialty.

EXPECT CHEAPER STEEL.

It is believed that the U. S. Steel Corporation may reduce its prices this month, and it was said in this connection that the quarterly report procedure would indicate that this great concern sees a chance to obtain large orders at lower prices. Price cutting by independents did not increase their plans of output as it is U. S. Steel policy to await developments rather than to attempt to force them. Its March decrease in unfilled tonnage was about what was forecast. The steel trade in general is very dull. March ingot production was a low record, based upon what was done last month in pig iron this country's 1921 output is that basic commodity will be the smallest since 1908, unless furnaces are allowed to make wage reductions they will have more money for new equipment and which to buy ore more badly in need of both. This would stimulate the steel industry and increased automobile production will help it also.

Porphry Mining Production

For March preliminary figures as to copper production by leading porphyry mines are: Utah 7,500,000 pounds, Chino 3,051,823, Ray Consolidated 1,500,000, and Nevada Consolidated 2,940,000.

Wall Street Briefs

Skelley Oil Co. stockholders will hold a special meeting on April 22 to vote on increasing capital stock from $5,000,000 to $25,000,000.

If railroad wages are reduced Wall Street believes that new rulings which the commission authority believes that 50,000 out of the 485,000 men now idle would be employed.

It is reported from Akron that tire orders are coming in so fast manufacturers expect this month by Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. will show a 75 per cent. increase. Goodrich Co. plant is operating on a basis of 17,000 tires a day and expects to have it going to 20,000 before the end of this week.

Railroad Items

During the April 2 week the St. Paul road handled 24,091 cars, compared with 26,- 500 during the like week last year, a decrease of 2,409. From April 1 to April 7 the Soo road cars handled a total of 7,471 cars, compared with a total of 7,471 cars.

The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad reports for 1920,241 cars loaded and received during March this year, compared with 172,562 for March, 1919, a decrease of 23,- 301 cars.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, April 11.—The improvement in the cotton market which was started last week from Liverpool induced heavy buying of cotton by Wall Street, the leading trade and local sources at the opening of the cotton market today on which 20,000 bales sold at 24 to 31 points, New Orleans and other Southern points supplied most of the offerings early. Prices rose further after the start, but the list met considerable pressure, which subsequently caused reaction of about 10 points from the best.

Opening prices were—May, 12.00, op 35; July, 12.50 op 35; October, 13.42, op 31; January, 13.15, op 30; December, 13.42, on 31. January, 13.31, op 30.

Oxford Oarsmen Collapse After Race With Cambridge

This remarkable photograph shows the Oxford crew collapsing after crossing the finish line one length behind the Cambridge eight in the annual race between the two crews on the Thames at London, March 30th. The Cambridge oarsmen had to be assisted from the shell. One of the men who collapsed was F. B. Lothrop, No. 4 of the Oxford crew and the only American in the race.

RED SOX TRAIL NEWARK, 6-5

Jimmy Walsh Pilots New Jersey Outfit to Win Over Former Teammates

By Universal Service.

Newark, N. J., April 11—Twelve thousand fans braved the chilly weather to witness the Newark Bears in their first home game in two years against the Boston Red Sox.

The home team was returned winners by the score of 6 to 5.

The Bruins, under the leadership of Jimmy Walsh, the former Athletic and Boston Red Sox star, played a fine snappy brand of ball. With the score tied at 5 to 5 in the eighth, Pete Kruenmaker, the lanky first baseman of the Bears, doubled against right field stand and scored on Tommy Ray's single to right for the winning run.

The summary:

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART PROMOTES BOXING SHOW

By Universal Service.

Pittsburgh, April 11.—Mary Roberts Rinehart, author and playwright, as one of the promoters of a boxing show for the benefit of the American Legion Post at Sewickley, an exclusive suburb, will try to outshine Anna Morgan tomorrow night.

The show will be a real "slambang" affair—no parlor stuff, say the promoters, among whom, in addition to Mrs. Rinehart, are two ministers, Rev. A. C. Howell, rector of the Church of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and Rev. William P. Curtin, pastor of St. James' Catholic Church.

Eight bouts who will engage in the six bouts on the program include: Johnnie Ray, Buck Crouse, Jack McCauley, Pete Keyser, Val Graham, Jack Perry, Danny Dillon, Patsy Scanlon, Jack Chick Hayes, Patsy Young, Mike Moran and Young Henny.

COAST GOLF CHAMPION IS SUED FOR DIVORCE

San Francisco, April 11.—Mrs. Cornennah De Pue Neville today brought suit for divorce from her husband, Jack Neville, the golf player, in Redwood City.

In the complaint Mrs. Neville charges her husband with cruel and inhuman treatment and asks the court for custody of their two-year-old son, Edgar, and $100 monthly for his support.

Neville holds the Northern California championship as a golfer and is a former State champion.

Stories of Famous Fights

Murphy and Keyes Fight Draw
By Tad.

Ripping and tearing at one another, like two fight-mad bulldogs, Tommy Murphy and Bert Keyes were pulled apart at the finish of their six-round fight last night, with neither having an inch the better of the bout.

Not even the clang of the bell stopped the two bloody scrappers, for they fought across the ring after the time was up, fought inch for inch along the ropes, first one reeling and then the other. Referee Buckley pulled them away as the timers do their flashing strikers.

It was a grand finish of a grand fight, and one that has set the high water mark for six-round affairs in this vills. There never was a more exhilarating contest at club—never was a boy to who came through as Murphy did after being practically out in the first round There never was such a finish as Keyes put up after being battered almost blind for three rounds after that.

Ban Is Talking

Ban Johnson, prattling old man, has broken out again.

In an address at Cleveland the president of the American League said the recent investigations into baseball scandals developed that certain club owners were not been true to their trust and must be driven from baseball.

Thirty per cent. of the owners of teams in the American and National leagues must go, said Ban. He did not so state, but he probably estimates the opposition to his whims at about 30 per cent.

Ban can probably think of a lot of things the matter with these owners. They fought him until they ended a Csardom in the American League. Today Ban's old power is a memory. All that is left to him from the days of his greatness is his garrulity, a terrible habit.

What Ban should have said is that 100 per cent. of the old governors of baseball were untrue to their trust when they resorted to the "slush" policy that kept the scandals quiet until they were exposed by outsiders. But what Ban says about anything is no longer important as his connection with baseball has been rendered harmless.

Beaten repeatedly by major leaguers, now beaten twice in a day by "bushers," something is wrong with Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson's Brooklyn Dodgers, champions of the National League.

Perhaps their title explains it. Ball clubs reflect life in general. They work desperately toward a certain goal, having attained that goal, they invariably relax and suffer from self-satisfaction.

Spring form as a rule means little in baseball. John McGraw once had a club that won eighteen consecutive games in Spring exhibitions, then failed to win a league game for weeks. However, in the case of the champion Dodgers their recent defeats seem to be straws showing that the winds of deterioration have set in.

Macon hoodlums, jeering and insulting the Yale ball players in training in the Southern city in no way represent the feeling of the town. Every community has it's nasty element. The people of Macon, fine, hospitable, will doubtless take drastic steps to put a stop to this sort of business immediately. D. R.

WITH THE SCHOOLBOYS

By FRED C. LANE.

Regardless of its defeat by Cambridge Latin, Somerville High will be a serious and dangerous contender all through the twenty-one league games. In Saturday's game Coach McLaughlin had a fine chance to see what his four green men could do under fire. Next week's playing of this team should show a lot of improvement.

In Currier Somerville has one pitcher. His judgment in the pinches is enough to win many games. Considerable credit must also be given to McCrehan of Cambridge Latin, who pitched against Currier. This lad, in his manner, used his gray matter to good advantage, and with a few breaks in the game that went his way emerged a winner.

The centre fielders of both teams showed wonderful running catches, each nick being labeled for three bases or better. Gilky hauled in one that sure was on the way to the fence, with two men on at the time; Sullivan for Cambridge Latin did the same stunt with the same number of men on, saving the game.

PLAYERS ARE EAGER FOR OPENING OF SEASON

By NICK FLATLY

Cincinnati, April 11.—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Louisville Colonels is called to talk himself into the rest of the Braves youngsters, but here they are on a bleak, raw morning, unusual for Redland, transferring from the L. & N. depot to the Big Four Station, and they are all bound for Boston and will go on the active payroll list Wednesday morning.

Since the Braves left their Galveston training grounds only Paul Johnson, right hand pitcher, has been cut adrift. He went back to the Columbus, S. C., team in the Sally League, whence he came. His going last night in Louisville was almost tearful. The big, blonde kid surely had his heart set on "making" his "B," but he'll have to be content with that "C" for a time yet. He's young and has very much to learn, and he was wild.

MAY WORK OUT TUESDAY

There are thirty players in this outfit which will reach Boston shortly before noon Tuesday, and report at the Wigwam that afternoon for parceling out lockers, uniforms and getting things generally in condition for the big hostilities the following afternoon.

If the weather conditions are right in Boston tomorrow, Manager Mitchell will have his men work out a bit. They have been a bit short on beneficial work lately. They loafed Friday, which was nothing, because they had had steady work up until that day. But Saturday and Sunday were of little conditioning value, because of the extreme cold snap which paralyzed Kentucky and most of the surrounding terrain. And then this long hop from Louisville to the Hub is no picnic.

WILL HOLD TOWNSEND.

Ira Townsend, who is more or less a protege of Oscar Dugey, the Texas coach of the Braves, worked yesterday against the Colonels and while not sensationally effective, was not wild, had that "down" fast ball of his working well and displayed just enough possibilities to make his position with the Braves secure for a time longer. Mitchell likes to be sure of these rookies before turning them back.

He says the gamble involved in uncovering one or two good ball players is so tempting that he must keep these kids for trying out purposes just as long as the law admits and let them go only when it looks as if they were unripe and fully entitled to some more seasoning in the remote brush.

ARCHDEACON HAS SHOW.

Teddy Hawk and Maurice Archdeacon are the two kid Braves who have not had a good chance yet to show just what they can do. For that reason it is safe to say that they will be held for a time, say, at least until May 15, the date when the tribal option of Archdeacon expires and when the tribe must kick in with $4,500 if Maury is to continue receiving mail at the Allston depot.

Mitchell says that what chance there was of Archdeacon starting the season in the outfield has been eliminated by the developments here. Ray Howard, veteran, who disappointed fans in other years by his failure to live up to his high promise of being a true field star, has been shining brightly again and must be in there, at least against a right hand pitcher. Chances are the Brooklyns will use a right-hander, Wednesday, say Cadore or Grimes.

COLLEGE GUN TEAMS TO SHOOT IN ENGLAND

New York, April 11.—The Intercollegiate Association of Associated Rifle Clubs announces that a team will be sent to England to compete against a British intercollegiate team. Three men will be tried out by each of the fifteen colleges in the National Rifle Association events at Camp Perry next Summer.

CRIMSON FOOTBALL SQUAD ON THIRD WEEK

The third week of Harvard spring football will start today with a squad diminished by the other spring sports. This week will be devoted to scrimmage work, and the coaches will work out plays that have been thought out during the Winter.

GIANTS RELEASE FIVE PLAYERS

Kane, Spencer, Winters, Evans and Barcroft Sent to Minor Leagues

New York, April 11.—Five players have been released by the New York Nationals to minor league clubs, according to an announcement made here by the management of the Giants. The players' names and the clubs to which they have been traded follow:

Infielder Leo Kane to Hartford, outfielder Vernon Spencer and Pitcher Jess Winters to Toronto, Pitcher C. Evans to the Norfolk, Virginia, league; outfielder Roy Bancroft to Chattanooga Club.

Infielder Roy Grimes' released to Toledo was previously announced.

YALE AND PENN TO OPEN ROWING SEASON APRIL 16

The intercollegiate rowing season for 1921 will open next Saturday when Yale and the University of Pennsylvania meet over the Henley distance of one mile and five-sixteenth on the Housatonic River at Derby, Ct. There will be two races, one for varsity and one for junior crews.

This will be the fourteenth race between Yale and Pennsylvania. The series began in 1878 when Yale won four times in succession at New London. In 1901 and 1902 there were no races. Yale won again at Philadelphia in 1903. From 1904 to 1908 inclusive there were no races. The series was resumed in 1909, and in the eight races from that date to the present Pennsylvania has won five times and Yale three. The Pennsylvania crew will leave for New Haven next Wednesday and row over the course on Thursday and Friday.

IN ONE DAY'S MAIL

Sporting Editor Boston American

Dear Sir: Evidently you got the wrong impression from my letter of a few days ago, as your answer didn't quite answer my question. Despite your lengthy reply, in which you quote the names of a few players of by-gone days, I still insist that there's too much notice given to professional ball players. During the war wasn't baseball declared non-essential? I'm not trying to knock the game, as I know, as everybody else does, that for pastime it's the grandest game on earth. In fact, I played with the fast Kenanbunk team previous to the war. It's the "holdouts" that quit at the crack of the whip that I'm kicking on.

Dear Sir: During the past few months I have attended quite a few boxing shows and have noticed that some of the performers wear on their tights some kind of an ititial or monogram. Is it a sign of superstition among boxers or does it represent the college they graduated from. My gentleman friend can give me no information.

TWO SHOWS FOR RING FANS

Carlyle Club Holds Tourney at Grand Opera House; Pures at Arena

There are two attractions for Boston and New England fistic fans tonight. The Carlyle Club stages forty-six rounds of battling at the Grand Opera House, while the trial bouts of the national amateur championships will be held at the New Boston Arena.

The A. Murgs in our community will spend a busy day trying to frame excuses which will enable them to breeze past friend wife after kayoing the family offering at supper. You can't blame a bird for quitting his slippers in place at the dear old fireside with two such banner ring attractions to pick from.

Billy Brophy says there will be all kinds of action at the Carlyle Club's show. A glance at the program bears out this statement.

Tom Kanaly is just as sure that the amateur bouts at the Arena will be about as lively as the scene about Noah's Ark as the mob hopped aboard during the height of the flood.

So there you are, friends and neighbors. Make your own selection and be happy. You'll be dead long enough.

The boy from the Carlyle Club has just left us a copy of Brophy's program. Here it is:

Shaver O'Brien, South Boston, vs. Harry Silva, West End, ten rounds.

Tommy Rawson, East Boston, vs. Dutch Reagan, East Boston, ten rounds.

Johnny Donovan, South Boston, vs. Jimmy Duffy, New Orleans, ten rounds.

Young Donahue, South End, vs. Charley Sheppard, Woburn, eight rounds.

Young Delaney, Hyde Park, vs. Eddie McCarthy, Medford, eight rounds.

Not a bad card as fight go nowadays.

Of course there will be plenty of lively boxing and some heavy punching at the amateur show at the Arena. Those amateur boxers certainly know how to punch merrily. That's why a lot of fellows who never take to professional show are down front puffing away at a big cigar when the "almon pures" are in action. They don't have any of those "in a tag bag" affairs in amateur circles. It is a case of punch, punch and then some more.

Pete Herman, former world's bantamweight champion, will pay a visit to our fair city this week. He is coming here for the purpose of batting Young Montreal in a ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at the New Boston Arena Friday night. Herman has scored four knockouts since returning from England, while Montreal recently pasted Ted Lynch for a fare-well at Cleveland. Therefore, is should be quite a quarrel Friday p. m.

Secretary Ivey Lewis of the Armory Club announces that reservations may be secured at Room 7, No. 61 Court street.

MURPHY DRIVES AUTO 109.55 MILES AN HOUR

Los Angeles, April 11.—Jimmy Murphy won the national A. A. A. automobile race at the Speedway. He took the fourth heat of the twenty-five miles in 15 minutes 8.3 seconds, an average speed of 107.3 miles an hour, and the final heat of the fifty miles in 27 minutes 57.3 seconds, at an average speed of 109.55 miles an hour.

Stock to Rejoin Cards

Mobile, Ala., April 11. — Milton Stock, third baseman of the St. Louis National League club, who has been a holdout this season, left his home here to report to the team. Stock announced before leaving that the club owners had agreed to his terms.

BASEBALL IN BRIEF

Columns have and will be written on the possibilities of the big league races which open this week. Busy persons may not have time to wade through so many words. Let us briefly summarize the situation as it appears from past performances, Spring training results, and the observations of the experts:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Cleveland—Should repeat.
New York—No worse than second. The co
St. Louis—Generally picked third.
Philadelphia—May be the dark horse.
Washington—Just a ball club.
Detroit—Featuring Manager Cobb.
Chicago—Shot to pieces.
Boston—Holding a franchise.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New York—Balloting gives them the pennant.
Brooklyn—Still has those pitchers, minus the one that might mean victory.
Pittsburgh—About third.
Cincinnati—Held up by hold-outs.
St. Louis—Hornsby, and no pitching.
Chicago—Pitching, and no Hornsby.
Boston—Better than 1920; couldn't be worse.
Philadelphia—Nothing.

SPORT-FOOD

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

Upon a dinky corner lot a bunch of kids are striving.
The diamond is strewn with cans, the ground is rough and hard.
And in their flivs and limousines the grown-up fans are driving
To see the paid performers in the big league baseball yard.
The grown-up rooters hurry on and do not stop to dally
For they prefer to linger in a shaded big league stand,
But if it were not for the kids who play in lot and alley
There would not be a big league park in all the blessed land.

Ty Cobb has hired an assistant manager by the name of Cy Cholsey. A highbrow who has never had any big league experience.

If you question the average ball player on the subject of psychology he will ask you what league Cy played in.

Brute Strength, Bone and Brawn Won

By "Bugs" Baer.

To whom it may concern:

Scranton Jack Callahan was once in my employ. Once. He was faithful in his attendance, scrupulous in manner and indefatigable in his dress. The only fault I had to find with him was that he wouldn't work. He studied the correspondence system and threw the meanest postcard in the works. He gained a victory over Gink Fowler in seventy letters and a postscript.

Yours, in sunburn or in frost,
PHIL PONCE, Scranton.

When a man is trying, in spite of cranial difficulties, to tell the truth, it becomes irksome to receive letters like this. On the day that Mr. Ponce claims that Scranton Jack knocked out the champ with a short souvenir postcard to the ribs, Gink was riding in the Roughdown Slumburban Steeplechase. This steeplechase was the finest in the world. The water jump was the Niagara Falls. The hurdles were the Palisades. The ditch was the Grand Canyon of California.

It was what golfers would label a sporty course.

Gink was winning, as usual. He was four states and two territories in the lead. Suddenly, his lion talked at a cement-crushing beetle and threw the champion. Gink went over the lion's head and right out over the Lincoln Highway like a breeze. The steeplechase was won by Gink's sweety, Lucintha Beans. She was the prettiest girl in Roughtown and always posed for the mustard plaster ads. She was a model in a bunion cure laboratory.

This Scranton Jack Callahan was the Spenserian, Western Union and Sears-Roebuck champion of the world. The distance between Scranton and Roughtown was 2,866 miles. And Scranton never took a step in the correct latitude. He made a specialty of a collect telegram that was regarded as a foul by other battling letter writers.

Gink and Scranton did fight. But Gink finished at least 1,000 letters ahead of Scranton.

Gink was handcuffed because he didn't know the language of stamps. But fortune was always with him. He accidentally pasted one stamp upside down. All sweeties know what that means. The jury stayed out long enough to find a bootlegger and awarded the precious C. S. Mail scuffle to Gink on a technicality.

Patience will conquer brute strength.

EXPERTS PICK SPOKES TO WIN

Damon Runyon Says Majority Pick Cleveland on Past Performance

By DAMON RUNYON.

Until Miller Huggins gets his Yankee lineup finally adjusted it will be difficult to determine the exact strength of the club.

The majority of experts throughout the country pick Cleveland to repeat. Speaker's club is no weaker, and in spots is even stronger than in 1920, so on the basis of past performance the Clevelanders seem to stand out over their American League rivals.

However, it must be remembered that even if Cleveland is as strong as last year, the opposition has strengthened, and this is bound to cut considerable figure. The Philadelphia Athletics, which were easy picking for all the other clubs, may not be so soft this year.

Connie Mack's club seems about ready to go. It has been announced as all set several years in succession, but something always happens to clog the start. This time the team leader seems to have all the kinks straightened out with a fair infield, a good outfield, a strong catching staff and fair pitchers.

Some go so far as to pick Mack's club for a first division berth. A few figure that the old Philadelphian may pull a Georges Stallings on the American League and rush right through to a pennant.

Tigers Stronger Than Last Year

These persons are probably overoptimistic, however. It isn't that kind of league. Mack will be doing very well and furnish plenty of excitement for Philadelphia if he gets out of the second division.

The point is, he will be giving Cleveland and the other strong clubs more of a fight this year than last, and assist in giving the race a better balance. The Detroit Tigers under Cobb, also seem to be improved in team morale, so another spot in the league that was weak last season is strengthened.

The Chicago White Sox, shot to pieces by the baseball trailers, seem to be in bad way, if we may judge by the statements from the Spring training camp. They are apt to take the place of the Philadelphia club as the league jokers.

Gleason and Comiskey have rounded up a bunch of gents who hit the ball hard in the minor leagues. They will be up against a fairly good pitching brand of pitching in the big league. No, we cannot offer much encouragement for the White Sox rooters.

The Washington club will be better. The Red Sox, with Meusel and Pratt in the line-up, may show improvement, although probably booked for the second division. The St. Louis Browns, with a good outfield, a fair infield, and good fair pitching is picked as the one-two-three contender against Cleveland and the Yankees.

Hugging comes back into New York with his lineup, as stated, still so uncertain that the full strength of the club cannot be judged. It is a heavy hitting outfit, of course, but has fair pitching. The catchers are not up to the catchers on some of the other clubs in the league, but good enough. The infield is not yet in place.

Walter Pipp Is Real Ball Player

Pipp will be at first. Pipp is a good ball player, of whom it is said he should be better. Every year for several years it has been regularly predicted that this would be his big year. He has settled down into a good player of known capabilities, but so far these capabilities have not proved sensational.

He is a good fielder and at times a tremendous hitter. He is a better first baseman than either Burns or Johnston, members of the club that won the world's championship last season. He is not as good as Risler or McInnis, but quizes the Tigers and Connie Mack are springing several sensations, he is topped by no other first baseman in the league.

At second Huggins is playing Peckinpaugh, the stories from the South suggest that Fewster's health may not permit him to keep in the position all season. Thus Huggins would have to shift Ward, the great young third baseman, over to second and play the slow Baker on third.

Newcomer in Yank Outfield

So, then, no one really knows what Huggins' infield will be. Mitchell, a newcomer to the club, is playing short at present, and if he has said that he might displace Peckinpaugh. However, the displacement will probably be only until Peck is in condition. They are not displacing Peckinpaughs on big league clubs nowadays.

Ruth, Roth and Bodie, with Meusel as a substitute outfielder and infielder, and with Schang behind the bat, give Huggins plenty of hitting strength, and against that hitting it will take much good pitching to prevail.

FAIR WARNING.

Though months have passed since I have seen
A certain spot, in memory green
I keep it;
And as the Winter months wear on
I visionize the well-kept lawn
That sweeps it;
Nor is this spot a boyhood home
O'er which so many people moan
And sigh for;
Nor is it yet a college yard
Where stately elm tr ees stand on guard,
I cry for;
I'll see this spot just two days hence
And you can bet I'll feel immense
To view it;
And should some other ball fan fleet
Attempt to grab my bleacher seat,
He'll rue it.

And dope a million different ways
To make these dreams come true;
The office gang is sore at me,
They say I'm decking work,
Yet they should know, most certainly,
That I am not a shirk;
I plan to shake this lethargy;
I know a thing that cures,
And, if you feel the same as me,
Just go and watch the "saves."
This evening or on Tuesday night
As they swap mitt for mitt;
You'll get jazzed up all right, all right,
And come back feeling fit.

TOB GIBBONS BATTLES WITH LARRY WILLIAMS

New York, April 11.—Boxing arenas in Manhattan and Brooklyn offer attractive programs this week and a great variety of fistcuffs will be seen. Charley Dessereack, as usual, has the most pretentious card, and tomorrow night will introduce Tom Gibbons in a bout with Larry Williams at Newark, N. J. Williams should give Gibbons a stronger argument than Sampson did, but even so, the calibre of Gibbons cannot be established through bouts with men like Sampson and Williams.

The latter has already boxed two ten-round bouts with Gibbons and held the St. Paul heavy even.

If Gibbons decisively defeats Williams, Dessereack will match the victor with Al Roberts or Bob Roper.

Tragedy of the Sea Where Heroine's Spirit Lived in Buccaneer Days

This amazing mystery is founded on a story by P. Britton Austin, which has been made into a wonderful picture drama by Cosmopolitan Productions, under the direction of George D. Baker, starring Marion Davies, the famous screen beauty. It will be shown at the Modern and Beacon theatres the week of April 18.

Synopsis

Pauline Vandermeulen, a beautiful young heiress, has the strange faculty of apparently seeing herself and others incarnated in previous ages. She is the daughter of a multi-millionaire known as "the Pirate of Wall Street," who aims to marry her to the Duc de Chavannes, an impoverished nobleman. Her own secret choice is Dr. John Grant, the pal of her brother Geoffrey. In order to help his plan, the father orders the daughter to accompany him on a cruise on his yacht, also inviting the Duke. Pauline outwits her father, and the shrewd "Pirate of Wall Street" invites her hero to cruise with the family and his unsuspecting ducal rival.

By Jane McLean

CHAPTER VIII.

FOR a second the Duke stood speechless; then with a trembling finger he pointed to the pair. But Vandermeulen had no need to be shown; with a stride that changed into a savage bound he gripped the doctor by the arm and still holding him at arm's length demanded with white lips the meaning of the extraordinary scene.

Pauline started to speak. "Be silent!" Her father let go his hold on the young man and turned to his daughter. "Go on deck; go to your mother at once!"

"Wait a minute!" she faced him fearlessly. "I shall stay where I am unless you carry me."

With a snarl of rage Vandermeulen whirled on the doctor. "Consider yourself under arrest," he cried, while the nonplussed scion of nobility stared from one to another, uncertain what to do or what to say.

"Come here!" Vandermeulen yelled at a couple of sailors. "Take this chap to my stateroom and keep him there."

In vain the young man struggled. After all, what was the use? "I want to explain," he shouted to a voice that reached to the waiting Geoffrey and his mother.

"Explain hell!" shouted Vandermeulen. "Take him away." And Dr. Grant, propelled by two huskies, was ushered up the ladderway and secured to his stateroom door. He sank disconsolate into a chair and marveled at the wreck that can be caused by a kiss.

"And as for you, young lady, you come up at once; I have something to say to you!"

She preceded the two men to the stern of the yacht, where her mother and Geoffrey were sitting.

"Didn't you get your glasses?" cried Mrs. Vandermeulen—"have you seen your father—he went after you?"

"Caught you!" cried Geoffrey.

Pauline nodded. He whistled, and turned to his mother. "You don't know anything about all this," he managed to whisper, as Vandermeulen came pounding along the deck.

"My dear," she cried; "has something gone wrong?"

"Gone wrong? Oh, no—I have just discovered Pauline kissing Dr. Grant."

He looked from one to the other, as though it was a heinous offense.

"Oh!" said Mrs. Vandermeulen. "That's your idea of it, is it?" he thundered. "Well, it isn't mine. Now, young lady, what does it mean—that door to mean?"

What's in a Kiss?

"No, I don't. I find you, an engaged girl, kissing an engaged man —my daughter—I don't know what you call it."

"I mean that I have a perfect right to kiss Dr. Grant, and he has a perfect right to kiss me."

"What—he's engaged—and you know it."

"Of course I know it; he's engaged to me."

And the delighted girl threw back her head and laughed as though she had discovered the most delicious joke in the world.

To the intense astonishment of everyone, the Pirate of Wall Street forbore to rage and storm; instead he smiled, and Pauline thought as she looked at him that he was more dangerous in this assumed bonhomie-like demeanor than in his customary bellicose attitude.

"Very well, gentlemen and ladies —the next play is up to me—and, like a prudent skipper, I shall ask no more questions. Meanwhile Dr. Grant can diagnose his own case in his stateroom and when we land I will supply him a speedy trip back to New York."

The Duke moved over to Pauline's side. "We were talking of pirates," he said, "when you left to get your glasses. I hope I do not seem to belong to that discreditable class in your eyes."

Pauline did not answer. It had been decidedly trying for her to endure the gibes of her father before this man. The mere sight of him annoyed her. That he should have been the witness of her humiliation was sufficient to add to the dislike she had already felt for him.

Moreover, nothing could conceal from her his real motive in seeking her hand. She knew that if some financial calamity happened to her father that the Duc de Chavannes would politely fade into a mere acquaintance and transfer his affections to more promising fields.

Mrs. Vandermeulen showed her distress by her absent-minded replies to the occasional questions propounded by her husband. For him he was singularly patient. Geoffrey's consideration in walking off with the Duke on an errand transparently fictitious gave the family group time to take an inventory. Vandermeulen leaned toward his daughter. "I have ordered the captain to head for the nearest port," he said. "I'm going to put that young whippersnapper ashore."

Pauline Changes Her Tactics

"If I were he I'd appreciate it," said Pauline.

Vandermeulen smiled in silence. Pauline's tone changed. "See here, father; you're a pretty good sort after all—and I have an admiration for you wholly apart from my daughterly affection—so let's be friends, shall we?"

"Friends?" snorted the man.

"Why not? We'll declare an armistice while the doctor is aboard —no far you've had rather the worst of it—I mean the way you've been taken in, but who knows, luck may turn and better prospects may be in store for you."

Mrs. Vandermeulen shrank back into herself waiting for the expected explosion from her husband at this provoking speech. Instead he burst out laughing.

"You're on," he said, "but, young lady, I've never been beaten yet and I'm not going to start in now."

"Of course not," answered his daughter; "I suppose now we've declared an armistice, that you will allow Dr. Grant to come on deck."

"I will not."

"Oh, then, it isn't an armistice?"

"Not till the terms are signed."

"I'm ready to sign."

"Are you ready to swear you'll have nothing more to do with him —that you'll treat him as you'd treat any other friend of your brother's?"

"You wouldn't want me to sign to an untruth, would you?"

Vandermeulen's eyes showed the faintest suspicion of a smile. "I guess Dr. Grant better stay where he is."

The young man was enjoying an unhappy hour. He imagined he could hear Dan Cupid chuckling. Discreet lovers would have posted themselves in some less conspicuous place, far from the wanderings of roving owners.

It was ignominious to be shut up like a criminal for having the girl of his heart. From what he knew of Vandermeulen the latter would resent the fact that he had been fooled more than the underhand actions he had witnessed. He could force Pauline to break her engagement, but there was no way of escape from the barefaced fact that he, William Vandermeulen, had been done to a turn.

Rather Annoying

The doctor laughed at the thought of it—kept referring to it and calling up before his mind's eye a vision of the financier's face as it must have appeared when he learned the truth.

"What's next?"

"Pack you off home, I suppose—put you in a crate labeled dangerous and parcel post you to New York."

"Can't you fix up a scheme to help me out?"

"Do my best, old top. I needn't say here too long—might make Father uneasy, and as a dutiful son and so on——"

Geoffrey vanished, and his former buddie resumed his disconsolate survey.

Geoffrey joined the group on deck —rather a restrained group, each trying to appear as though nothing had happened, and thereby making it all the more apparent that the assumed gayety was merely a cover for hidden turmoil.

To all outward appearances life on the yacht resumed the even tenor of its sunshiny way, save that Dr. Grant was absent. To Pauline that made the hours unendurable; to Geoffrey it robbed the trip of much of its excitement; nor did the Duke find that it left him with a path of easy conquest.

If Pauline had required him before as a necessary part of a game to be played she ignored him now. He found that to make a young lady talk when she refused to be interested was beyond even his powers of conversation. Vandermeulen looked on and growled to his wife; he was a great believer in the power of time. He reckoned that once Grant was ashore his daughter would accept the inevitable. Pauline read him as well as he read himself. He knew it and that made him more determined than ever.

Geoffrey knew his father too well to intervene; having been caught red handed in one plot to fool the wary financier, he felt it necessary to watch his step. And rack his brains as he would, he could see no way to help his imprudent friend out of his dilemma.

Meanwhile it was surely not the part of a diplomat to make himself disagreeable. Geoffrey sat with his father and the Duke in three-handed bridge, while Pauline sat thinking and her mother did fancy work.

There was a certain air of bravado in the girl's action as evening following the unhappy episode. On the second evening she was not so buoyant. Her mother sensed her feelings.

"Read to me, Pauline—something exciting—something that will keep your mind busy," she urged, pointing with a large gesture to the bookcase that lined one side of the salon walls.

She read the title aloud; her father frowned. "That's the last, read it aloud, something spicy, lots of action."

Ordinarily it was not the sort of a tale to appeal to her—now it seemed to strike a responsive chord. The man went on with their game and the girl making herself comfortable opened the book and began in a low voice the story of El Diablo, whose name had come been a synonym for mysterious deeds of frightfulness on the high seas.

There was something in the tale that seemed to fascinate Pauline. Perhaps her mother felt too the spell of this fascination as she listened to the monotonal voice of her daughter; as she read the bridge game gradually lost interest and the three men also found themselves absorbed in the strange story of the old time freebooter whose double life had woven a net of tragedy around his household.

There was something human as well as terrible about the character of this man who had roamed the ocean in the guise of a humble merchant, unmasking his true colors only when in friendly touch with a craft weaker than his own.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Pauline reading to the Duc de Chavannes (at the right), her father (behind her) and her mother and brother the vivid story of El Diablo on her father's yacht in the very waters which the pirate had infested generations before. Marion Davies, the famous screen beauty, appears, in the part of Pauline, in which she stars in the film version of "Buried Treasure," which has been made by Cosmopolitan Productions.

For a Dainty Bride

By Rita Stuyvesant

SINCE the modes change, the modern bride wisely selects a limited supply of clothes, for course, every little bride desires an attractive negligee, and in this matter she may be a bit luxurious. Georgette crepe, orchid, flame, gold, jade or blue, may be beautifully blended into melting shades to make a dainty gown.

Models with a slim pleated foundation are veiled by a long coat of the fine fabric, and when tied with a bit of silver ribbon appears all that is beautiful. Other rest robes come in a slip-on model, lavishly embroidered in colored silk, and provided with a rope silk girdle. These are especially wantable in black and orchid.

Gloves silk crepe and bloomers are now shown in the loveliest colorings for a very small cost, and their fresh tint may easily be renewed after laundering. Two-piece sets in yellow, jade, orchid, flesh, turquoise and white sell for about $8, but wear wonderfully long with a little care.

Crepe de chine envelope chemises are durable, if fashioned of a heavy quality crepe de chine of the tailored type, prettily hemstitched, or may be favored with fine filet lace and soft satin ribbons. Although flesh is still liked, the pastel shades are most attractive, too. Wash satin and georgette are also used for the underchemise.

A dainty petticoat cut on narrow lines to preserve the slim silhouette, so fashionable at present, is lengthened by a pleated lace flounce, headed by small French flowers and tinted ribbons. One may create a set including nightie, chemise, bloomers, vest and petticoat, from a particular shade for the hope chest.

Academical Humor

"It is a strange thing," said the professor. "I was absent this morning by a man who studied at Heidelberg and spent several years in other educational centres. I know also, that he has written many scientific articles to our best magazines and has numbered among his intimate friends men of the highest social and political rank in Europe. And yet," soliloquized the professor, "he can't shave a man decently." Here the professor rinsed his young friend in astonishment. "Oh, he isn't a barber," said the professor, yawning. "You see, I shaved myself this morning."

Grow Glass Flowers

Perhaps, before very long, instead of bouquets of flowers being presented to our famous ladies upon occasions of ceremony, it will become the custom to present bouquets of glass.

Glass flowers for table decoration are becoming more and more popular, for, while the necessary brilliance of coloring can be embodied in these glass flowers, they do not fade as do real flowers, and therefore do not need renewing, unless a breakage occurs. An extension to the use of glass bouquets is only a step.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle.

Copyright, 1921, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"ONE of our troubles has vanished," I confided to Father Andrew, slipping my hand into his as we drove down in Tony's car to call for Dan Lee. "I got a nice, fat check from Jim's office today; so we don't have to worry about the wherewithal to take care of my presumed father.

Father Andrew turned his head and fixed his eyes on me reproachfully. "Babbals ,dear ,don't be so ornery about your poor old dad," he said. Then he added, with an extra share of tenderness to make up for any hurt he might have given me: "This check—does it reassure you about Jim?"

"Of course," I said, rejoicing in the impulse that had kept me from mentioning Miss Storrs. "But you mustn't ask me about him now, dear. I'll tell you more—when I've the right to."

The check from Miss Storrs gave me my chance. I had accepted it solely because I felt it would enable me to take care of Dad Lee and relieve Father Andrew of the burden. But now the mention of it had given me my chance to put it into Father Andrew's head that Jim was all right and didn't need my dear old man to start a searching party.

Only Person

"I'll tell you more as soon as it's fair," I reiterated. "You're the only person in the world to whom I've mentioned this matter at all, so you see my life-long habit of confiding in Father Andrew hasn't changed just because he foists a brand-new father on me."

"You blessed child," said Father Andrew, giving my hand a hearty squeeze. "You tempt me to be a selfish wretch and to gloat over the way you're shutting a poor old sick man out of your heart on account of me. But you don't have to stop loving me so's to give your dad the devotion he's come half way across the continent to claim. Won't you be kind to him for my sake?"

"Don't put it that way"——

"Is it the way to persuade you, Bubbals? Then I do put it that way, so's to make you see the right of it. Will you be kind and daughterly to your old fur my sake?"

"I'll try hard," I repeated, choking down the repulsion in my heart.

So when Dad Lee joined us I was very gentle and very kind. But not even for Father Andrew could I offer the other man a caress of any part. Fortunately, he has an abrupt, jerky coldness that doesn't desire kissing or caressing.

"I know a dear little restaurant where we three can be almost alone," I suggested as Lyons started the car up the avenue in answer to instructions that he drive about while we decided where to dine.

"It has big leather divans all around the room and there's some bay window circling out and away from things, so it has almost the privacy of home."

"That'll be fine," agreed Father Andrew. "It's so early we'll likely get your private circle all right and then we can visit nice and [illegible] instead of part of the three-ringed circus here in your big town."

Somehow I expected Dad Lee to protest that he hadn't come to the big city to be stuck off in quiet, one-horse restaurants. But he didn't. He astonished me by sinking back quietly on the leather divan of the bay window table we had no trouble in securing, and as he relaxed he exclaimed:

"Say, this is great Did your tony hubband train you to graze in quiet spots like this, dear?"

"That isn't one of Jim's haunts," I replied, with an attempt at a friendly smile.

"I'll lay my bets it's not," chuckled Dad Lee.

The waiter came to take our order, so I was prevented from investigating the chuckle. All through dinner I kept wondering if that chuckle was sinister or senile.

"I promised to tell you something, daughter," he said, with a shadowy repetition of the chuckle that had bothered me, "why I came home to you. I don't go back on my word. I'm ready now! Want to hear?"

"Of course," I replied, wondering why I wanted nothing so much as —as not to hear.

Different Classes

"Well, then, I'm off. It's like this. I thought at first I'd keep away from you always and leave you to trot in the class for which you'd been grooming. Then I woke up to comething—and that's how the human classes ain't set off clear like the ponies. I'd of stayed away for your sake, mdear, if it hadn't come to me straight that I ought to come on for your sake."

"For my own sake," I began, incredulously, then under the prompting of Father Andrew's eyes I went on, "that was very kind. I'll try to show my appreciation."

"I thought you would, daughter. It's your duty to—just like it were my duty to come to you when I found out you needed me and my knowledge. Being as how you'd elected to run your race with a man of my own sort. Yes, when I find out that the things I'd learned when I was young can help you I make tracks for you quick."

"I knew 'twere my duty the second I heard that your hubby is a gambler, too."

Stingiest Person

One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

The stingiest person I know is a woman who conducts a bennery. She asked my mother, who got her supply of eggs from her, to give her her doughnut recipe. Mother told her the recipe would make three dozen doughnuts. She said that would be more than they could use, as there were only herself and husband to cook for. Mother suggested that she divide the recipe and make half the amount. She hesitated a moment and said: "Yes, I could do that, but how could I divide the egg in two?" A. M. B.

Goat Getters

One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

There is one thing that gets my goat and makes me good and sore, and that is when I tell my husband of an incident that has happened, and the next day he will say, "O, sweetheart, I heard so and so," and he will give an account of just what I had been telling him the day before. Losing his memory, don't you think? M. C.

FOR LOVE

AN ABSORBING TALE BY RUBY M. AYERS

PART II—CONTINUED

HE looked at Philip for approval, but Philip had turned away.

With every day he felt his position more acutely. Generous and good-natured as his father-in-law had proved, Philip disliked him more as time went on. It was galling and wormwood to him to think of the agreement between them. At first it had not seemed to matter; he had accepted it more or less philosophically, but since he had grown to love his wife it had seemed an intolerable shame.

He took little or no interest in the purchase of the furniture and the scheme of decoration. Once or twice he went with Eva to the shops, but he was so obviously disinterested that she gave up asking him to accompany her.

Her first delight in it had all died. This was not a "home" which they were preparing, but just a place with four walls and a door.

Once when she appealed to Philip as to what were his favorite colors, he shrugged his shoulders:

"I don't care—anything—please yourself . . . ."

He did not mean to be cruel. He believed that she was absolutely indifferent to him, "and that she despised him with all her heart."

Sometimes he found himself looking at her and marveling that she had so greatly changed. It seemed impossible that he had once been remorseful, because he thought she cared for him.

One night at dinner, when Eva had just returned from a shopping expedition to New York, he said irrelevantly:

"Do you remember that dinner party mother gave before we were married?"

She raised startled eyes. "Yes—when Miss Carrington fainted."

Philip frowned. "I wasn't thinking of that. I was thinking of the drive home afterwards." He leaned a little forward, his face flushing. "It didn't seem much like pretence then, did it?" he asked.

She met his eyes steadily. "I think we were both rather clever," she said lightly.

Philip looked at his wife with challenging eyes.

"I wonder what we would both give to be able to go back to that night!" he said.

Startled Eyes

"I wonder!" Eva was peeling a peach, but she kept her eyes steadily on her task. She wondered what he would say if he knew what a contrast the unhappy, shrinking bride of the past was to the girl he could see in her dainty evening frock who looked so calm and spoke so indifferently. What he would say were she to give way to the almost overpowering longing in her heart to rush round to him and sob out all her despair and misery. No doubt he would fling for the maid or something. . . . She laughed hysterically at the absurd thought.

"We must have some more dinner parties when we are settled in town," she said. "I hope you have lots of friends, Philip. I mean to be very gay."

She felt herself to be just an onlooker, watching with wide eyes of amazement, listening with astonished ears to this other girl who was Mrs. Philip Winterdick, this other girl who was striving desperately to make some sort of a thing of life out of the ruins of her dreams.

Philip did not answer, but his eyes turned involuntarily to his father's empty chair, and Eva finished rather hastily:

She knew what his thoughts must be, and she hated her new other self who had spoken so flippantly.

"I'm getting horrible—horrid" she thought, in despair. "What will become of me?"

She broke into the silence desperately. "There's the carpet to choose for your smoking room, Philip. Hadn't you better choose it yourself instead of leaving it to me? A man's taste is so different to a woman's."

He roused himself with an effort. "Oh, choose anything—can't the man at the shop tell you the right sort of thing?"

"Oh, I dare say he can," she said, indifferently. "I only wondered if you wouldn't prefer to choose it yourself."

"I shan't notice if there's a carpet or not," Philip said, hardily.

She remembered his words the next afternoon when she was in the empty smoking room of their apartments.

Most of the other rooms were decorated and finished—she had so hoped that Philip would take a little interest in this one at least.

She looked round her with heavy eyes; the empty place depressed her —the rumble of traffic seemed to be deafening.

Cheeks Burned

She clasped her hands together feverishly.

"And all my life will be like this —always," she thought in sudden panic.

With every day she and Philip only grew farther apart; she knew that Philip was changing even as she herself was changing, more coldly cool, less contented, and she was powerless to prevent it.

She wondered why he had alluded to the night of that dinner-party before their marriage.

Her cheeks burned as she remembered how on that homeward drive she had put her arms round his neck and kissed him—she covered her face with her trembling hands, and suddenly she felt h[illegible] her fingers.

She had been so happy then—life had been like a [illegible] slowly unfolding its petals before her; and now . . . she looked round the empty room—empty, as her whole future must be!

Looking back to the first night of their marriage, she wondered that Philip had ever troubled to pretend that he cared for her.

She left the empty room and went across to the one which she had chosen for her own. The dainty silk curtains were drawn, but a ray of September sunlight filtered through like a bar of gold on the carpet. It was a complete now, down to the smallest detail, and only waiting for its mistress.

"If only things had been just a little, little different," she thought, wildly. She turned away, her heart bursting with bitterness and sorrow, and as she crossed the hall to the front door, which she had left half open behind her, a man pushed it wide and stepped into the hall.

"Love, what luck! I thought I should find you here," he said, delightedly, and Eva looked up through her tears into Tom Callaghan's face.

Calligan Is Agitated

There was a moment of tense silence, then Calligan took a quick step towards her.

"Philip," he said insistently, "is he—isn't he here?"

She shook her head. She could not trust herself to speak. She was brushing the tears away childishly with her knuckles. She turned away, fighting hard for her composure.

Calligan hesitated; then he followed her. He put out his hand as if to touch her, but drew it away again.

"Oh, my dear," he said agitatedly. "What is it? What is it?"

"No-nothing—really n-nothing—please!"

Presently he spoke, rather mechanically.

"I heard you'd taken this place—a man Philip knows at the club told me—so I came along. I suppose you're not settled yet?"

"No." She had mastered herself, though her voice was a little shaky still. "It's nearly finished though." She choked back a lump in her throat. "I'm afraid I'm very rude—I didn't say how glad I was to see you."

"I've thought of you—often," he said in an odd jerky voice.

"I've thought about you, too," Eva said, trying to smile. "It was horrid after you left."

"Was it?" He found it impossible to be natural. "I'm glad you're coming to town." He added an effort. "The Higgsays House won't be too cheerful this Winter."

"Oh, I shall be quick back again," she said lightly.

Philip looked at his wife with challenging eyes.

"I wonder what we would both give to be able to go back to that night!" he said.

Startled Eyes

"I wonder!" Eva was peeling a peach, but she kept her eyes steadily on her task. Report on War Veterans' Care Should Compel Action

President's Special Commission Indorses Repeated Demands for Reform Made by the Boston American

The report submitted to President Harding by his special commission investigating the care of disabled veterans is a splendid indorsement of the repeated demands for reforms that have been voiced by the Boston American during the last two years.

Its most important recommendation is the creation of a veterans' service administration to take entire charge of the relief work among the ex-soldiers, to be headed by a director-general, who will be directly responsible to the President.

This means the merging of the War Risk Bureau, the rehabilitation section of the Federal Board for Vocational Education and such part of the Public Health Service as may be necessary, leaving the health service free to perform the civilian duties for which it was responsible before the war.

In a general way those duties consisted of research, medical work, safeguarding immigration ports, checking epidemics and augmenting the efforts of State boards of health to improve public health.

Another strong recommendation is that the director-general be given adequate authority, be unhampered by technical restrictions, and be independent of red tape routine in providing all necessary hospitalization and personnel, making use of all existing government hospitals and recruiting from civilian medical services in all ways as in his judgment may be required.

An immediate and progressive hospital building program is called for, with intelligently generous appropriations by the new Congress, which convenes today.

The commission cites the great need of more humanizing influences in the hospitals that the sick and wounded may be impressed with the fact that the nation is deeply concerned in their welfare.

For new hospitals and for the improvement of existing hospital facilities the last Congress made available $18,600,000; and the President's commission tells him that already there has been too much delay in making use of it.

The commission concludes that the job on hand is too big for casual consideration; that no Cabinet officer or assistant Cabinet officer, burdened with many other duties, should boss it. It contends that "the place held by the man charged with the welfare of the disabled saviors of the country should be considered in public esteem as one of the greatest honors the President can bestow, as the service he can render should be of untold value to the nation."

This report is convincing. It should compel action. The deplorable facts are in the President's hands. They sweep away all excuses for further delay.

The report and the facts it emphasizes speak to the President as the Boston American has been speaking to Congress and the people of the country ever since our sick and smashed war boys began to come home, expecting to receive the physical, mental and vocational rehabilitation which they so richly deserve and had been so profusely promised, but which a compound of politics, bureau jealousies and administrative stupidities have made it most difficult to obtain.

Cow YES, Capitalist NO

And Some Other Things for Your Delectation.

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, is arranging to get four thousand million dollars for the current expenses of this government. And he will ask the government at the same time to drop the Excess Profits Tax.

The big American producer of wealth, it seems, is not exactly like the patient cow. You can wean the cow's little calf or knock it on the head, and Mamma Cow will go on giving you all the milk she possibly can, if you feed her. But if you wean the American producer from his little bank account, or knock THAT on the head, he will not give you financial milk. Mr. Mellon knows all about that; he is a considerable producer himself, being the second richest man in the United States, which means the world.

Let not that fact excite unduly any citizen. It means that Mr. Mellon will probably know how to deal with financial questions. It also means that he will have no reason for considering anything but his own reputation and future glory in his work as Secretary.

Scandinavia decides to trade with Russia,

Norway and Sweden see no especial reason to bite off their own commercial noses in order to spite the Bolsheviks. The French, of course, with 30,000,000,000 francs of cancelled Russian bonds still in France, are bitter. But this country has no especial cause for bitterness. The foolish bankers that lent a little money to Russia can afford to charge off the loss. And as to what we are supposed to have given Russia to help her establish her own kind of government, THAT got no further than Wall Street, near Broad.

Some of it is spent now by Russian representatives that represent nothing, to buy whiskey in Washington, delivered to them regardless of that constitutional amendment, because they are "diplomats."

If that, by the way, isn't a good joke on prohibition, what is?

Senator Lodge, Senator Knox and Colonel

Harvey gathered to discuss the best way to end "the state of war" and establish peace with Germany. Those three interesting persons ought not to waste much time on discussion. The way "to resume is to resume." The way to make peace is to MAKE PEACE. We are not FIGHTING Germany, we are not GOING to fight Germany, Germany couldn't fight us if she wanted to. The war is over. Why not say so?

Germany offers labor and material for help to rebuild devastated France. A million and a half men are idle in Germany—about one-third, you will notice, of the idle in this country. The German million and a half idle ought to be working at French rebuilding "on account" of the indemnity total.

You can go to Europe without a passport

now, if you are an American citizen. For that matter, those that are not citizens can leave, without any passport. But foreigners arriving must have passports.

Americans once more are free to travel. We got excited when Germany told us our ships could not go here or there. But being "a very docile people," as Northcliffe truly said, Americans have patiently endured conditions under which they had to be ticketed, passported and labelled like criminals on leave.

More Truth Than Poetry

Please Be Patient With the Rich

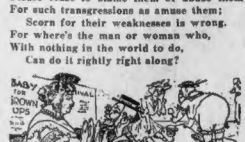
By S. E. KISER

THIS talk about the idle rich
Is not, kind friends, exactly fair;
Their wives need never sew a stitch.
No daily tasks demand their care;
They needn't worry over prices
Exacted for their minor vices,
But theirs is not an easy lot;
Don't think it's simple to be gay—
To leave the straight and narrow way—
Without the risk of being caught.

They may encamp on distant sites,
Hemmed in by woodlands, more or less,
And plan for merry days and nights,
Untroubled by a prying press,
But even in secluded places
Unbridled kicking over traces
Is never safe, by any means;
It matters not how well they hide,
Some daring vamp or ardent guide
Is pretty sure to spill the beans.

The idle rich may well complain
That theirs is not a happy fate;
Think of the great and constant strain
That they must suffer keeping straight!
There can be little satisfaction
In long and undisturbed inaction
Where peace prevails and drink is barred;
The irksomeness of being good—
Too frequently misunderstood—
Must weigh upon them very hard.

Let's learn that charity is not
Mere kindness to the poor and meek;
The idle rich deserve a lot
Of toleration, so to speak!
Please cease to blame them or abuse them
For such transgressions as amuse them;
Scorn for their weaknesses is wrong.
For where's the man or woman who,
With nothing in the world to do,
Can do it rightly right along?



THERE'S A HOOK IN IT SOMEWHERE

We are notified by one of the coal companies that if we order our supply for next Winter now we can get it before the price goes up again. Would you call this adding insult to injury or vice versa?

AWAY OUT WEST, April 8.

THERE'S AN Eastern man.
JUST A little more.
THAN MIDDLE aged.
AND FOR four days now.
WE'VE SMOKED together.
AND MODESTLY.
HE HAS let ma know.
HE HAS made his wealth.
AND HAS come out West.
TO CALIFORNIA.
TO LOOK about.
AND MAYBE find.
A SHADY place.
IN THE southern sun.
WHEREIN TO pass.
HIS DECLINING days.
AND THE first day out.
AS I talked with him.
HE SEEMED enthused.
ABOUT THE West.
AND HAD little to say.
OF HIS Eastern home.
EXCEPT TO point out.
WHAT ITS drawbacks were.
BUT LATTERLY.
AND JUST today.
I'VE BEEN sitting with him.
WHILE WE smoked our pipes.
AND HE'S said but little.
OF THE Golden West.
AND INSTEAD of that.
HE'S BEEN telling me.
OF HIS boyhood days.
IN THE Eastern town.
HE HAS just left.
AND OF his work.
AND THE struggles he had.
AND HOW he began.
TO BUILD the business.
THAT BROUGHT him wealth.
AND KEPT him busy.
TILL HE turned it over.
TO YOUNGER hands.
JUST A month ago.
AND HE'S told me a lot.
ABOUT THE friends.
THAT HE left back there.
AND ABOUT his wife.
WHO HELPED him build.
AND THEN grown tired.
HAD GONE to rest.
AND AS I write.
HE'S SITTING out there.
WITH HIS pipe gone cold.
AND THE shady place.
IN THE southern sun.
IS FADING out.
AND HE sees instead.
THE PLACE he left.
IN THE far-away East.

THANK YOU.

BIG EFFECT OF FICTION ON OUR LIVES

By The Spectator

FICTION is our environment. We got that very happy phrase from ex-Secretary Franklin K. Lane.

The whole passage is:

"Through fiction this generation is given its philosophy, economics, moral standards and inspiration by subtly instilling the thought which gives standpoint to life. Fiction is our environment, as real as the social group in which we move, and as determining in its effect."

That is a good statement for every story writer, magazine editor and movie person to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest.

Because it is so.

Stories More Than Lessons

The stories we tell children have more to do with the formation of their fundamentals of thought and conviction than the lessons we prescribe.

Emerson said the book under the desk has a greater influence on the boy than the book on the desk.

We are spirits, not animals. And we live by thoughts and visions, not beef.

Fiction is our escape from the actual. It has that rarest of powers, the power to lose us.

The longing of every soul is for escape. Fiction opens our cage door, and we flee as a bird to the mountains.

Bringing in the coal and wood is drudgery to Johnny, until he can play he's the hired man. Practising piano lessons is tiresome to Susie until she can imagine herself the elegant and accomplished Miss Jones.

All Through Life

And this law holds not only in childhood, but all through life. Things real are hardly to be borne until they become, in part, at least, things unreal.

The successful wife is the one who has been skilful enough to keep alive many pleasant fictions.

Even the business man can hardly retain his enthusiasms save as he makes his work some sort of game.

And fiction is that element which, added to work, makes it play.

For fiction is not untrue and fake. It can be truer than fact. For it is the soul of fact.

Bricks are not more real than the hews they build, neither are the bones and meat of our bodies more real than the loves and fancies that inform them.

Letters to the Editor

Elevated Fare

Editor Boston American:

I notice in your paper of recent date that the trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway informed their stockholders that there would be no reduction in fares for some time to come, but that there had been certain economies, etc.

I use the Elevated from North Station to South Station every day and pay ten cents per ride, which is a gross injustice, while for the same price I could get on at West Medford and ride to Forest Hills. If the Elevated trustees would use a little of the saving in coal on the short-haul rides, there would be no difficulty about lowering the fare. A SHORT-HAUL RIDER.

YOUR JOB AND YOU—

How many times do you have to be reminded that you should not expect the boss to praise you every time you do some one thing particularly well?

You ought to remember that you were hired to do good work and expect censure if you do not please, not every time you give satisfaction.

You may think because your services are not a very important feature in production that your services where you are employed need not necessarily be anything out of the ordinary.

But you will have to change your mode of thought and the spirit it engenders in yourself or you may lose even the place you have.

Some employers are so short-sighted that they will not move a man from a menial job, which he does well, because they think he is of too much value to them in the minor place, but comparatively few successful bosses adhere to this principle.

If your employer is such a man then you had better change your job.

But first be sure you are a success in your present place.

SUNNY BABE AND HARD HEARTED JANITOR

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

I WAS wandering through Back Bay the other day in the wake of a young mother who was proudly pushing a baby buggy containing a vivacious infant.

I judged it to be a girl. I am no particular authority on babies, but it was a mighty lively baby, and girl babies are generally livelier than boys. Anyway, this baby was sitting upright in its buggy, twisting and turning and laughing and cooing at all the world.

It was remarkable what a sunny influence that baby had on the pedestrians. I even noted a pleasant glow within myself after getting a smile and a gurgle from the infant.

Fine Influence

I got to thinking what a fine influence babies in general have on the world. They are a wonderful institution, babies, or perhaps I should say institutions. They come bobbing into the land of the living without any particular identity or character, but full of strange notions, and the first thing you know they have changed completely the little sphere into which they are born.

Couples that have found themselves pulling apart as the years of matrimony gradually stretched to a snapping point, have found themselves bound together more firmly than ever over a baby's cradle.

I never could understand how any one could abuse or mistreat a baby, a smiling, pink little infant, eager to make friends with anyone. I cannot understand how any heart could be hard enough to withstand the appeal of a soft, snuggling little body, or the feeble grip of tiny little fingers.

All Love Babies

It seemed to me, as I followed the mother and her baby, that every one in this great city loves babies. She finally stopped in front of a big apartment house and conversed with a fierce-looking man that I somehow judged to be the agent for the building, and I was happy to note that even this man grinned slightly at the baby and seemed softened by its presence.

Then I happened to overhear his words.

"Yes, ma'am," he was saying, "we've got several nice apartments for rent, but, of course, I couldn't rent 'em to you because we don't allow babies in this house."

The Foibles of Genius

Grieg, the musician, when about to compose, would first memorize the words whose meaning he wished to express by sounds.

"I require several days to heat my head," he once said; "then I lose my appetite, my eyes become inflamed, and the imagination is stimulated. Then I compose an opera in three weeks." Most people will agree that work produced under such conditions deserves to succeed.

Edgar Allan Poe was in the habit of drinking brandy for the same purpose. Voltaire went in for coffee, and De Musset for a mixture of beer and absinthe. De Quincey is said to have used opium, though he found it as much a hindrance as a help; and Burns preferred whiskey.

Stars and Stripes

A genius is but a man who makes full use of his abilities, who plows while other men merely scratch the surface.

A broken promise cannot be replaced by making another in its stead.
